FOREWORD

Principal source of data for Libraries is the American Library Directory, 1930.

To all States except those in which rural public libraries ^a have long been a fixture letters have been sent asking for later data. Where, supplied, this has been incorporated.

In States where negro population is a factor it has been given separately.

Illiteracy has been noted only where it reached 10 percent.

College and high school libraries have been noted in counties where public library service is limited or non-existent. As circulating public libraries develop the school libraries tend to be limited to reference books, or should so tend. For an able disquisition on relative roles of public and school libraries reference is made to an article by Clark and Latimer in the January, 1934, Library Journal.

The county library is found in its best development in California. In " Books for the South " , an American Library Association pamphlet issued in 1933, the statement is made (page 9) :

" The county is now being generally adopted as the most economical and effective unit of library service... There are some counties, however, that are too small and too poor to be able to maintain adequate library service. In such cases it is possible to have a regional library composed of two or more counties working in cooperation with each other.

" Experience shows that at least fifty cents per capita is necessary to establish a service that will prove itself essential. The amount is established by the governing body of the county, or by popular vote, according to the law of the State; or, a county may contract with an already existing city library to extend its service to the county; or, two or more small communities may pool their resources and develop a unit of service covering several counties. "

As a guide to an estimate of operating costs of library service, the cost per book circulated per annum is commonly chosen. Below are recent figures for some representative cities:

Boston	25.9	per	cent
Cincinnati	15.1	"	"
Detroit	19.1	"	"
Newark	24.	"	"
Cleveland	19.	"	"
Minneapolis	13.7	"	"
Washington	19.9	"	"
Baltimore	16.2	"	"
Buffalo	11.5	"	"

Certain minimum standards set by the American Library Association follow:

Income	$1.00 per capita
Circulation	Five books per capita
Personnel	One assistant for every 20,000 books circulated.

THE REGIONAL LIBRARY

Consolidation of units is not necessarily a measure designed to make a little money go a long way. Total cost may indeed be increased. The compensating value lies principally in a better service.

The regional library presupposes an organization that fits natural communities, rather than ancient boundary lines. In this it is following administrative trends in other areas of governmental supervision. Even before the county library has been developed its concept has been ^{come} ~~been~~ obsolescent, due in great part to the bus and airplane development which mocks distances.

The United States emerged from the "mad decade" with roads that permit motor travel into perhaps every settled community, but where a road may be lacking an airplane can find its way.

All night great trucks travel the highways bringing produce from the fields to the early morning market. All day these monsters on wheels rumble over paved roads and buttressed bridges built at public expense, laden with products of ^f factories consigned to distant points. Cannot library trucks function as efficiently as these?

Relatively simple, then, is the problem presented to a section without library facilities if there is anywhere within a hundred miles a well-developed service with which agreement can be made to establish a branch.

THE AUTO LIBRARY

The library book truck itself may be utilized for rural service if specially constructed for it. There are said to be about sixty of these in use now in the United States. One of them is described as a Dodge truck with specially constructed body and book shelves opening on the outside. Their capacity is about 1,400 volumes. When the book auto stops at a rural school the juvenile side is opened; when the stops are made at country stores, or filling stations, or other places convenient for adults, the other side is opened.

The book auto runs on a regular schedule and people watch for it as ^{they} do for the postman.

Recapitulation of library conditions as reported by American Library Association in " Books for the South," 1933:

ALABAMA: population 2,646,248, of whom 850,528 live within service area of its 21 public libraries. 1,795,720 people do not have public library service. The 21 public libraries contain 403,031 volumes, had a circulation of 2,631,075 volumes and spent $208,107 during 1931. Seven counties appropriate money for library service, three of them less than $1,000; 47 counties are without public library service of any kind; 2 libraries give service to negroes. There are permissive county and municipal library laws but no state public library extension agency.

ALABAMA

LIBRARIES IN SIX COUNTIES

CULLMAN (Total population, 41,051; rural, 38,265).

Cullman (7,661)

St. Bernard College and High School libraries.

The population is quite able and sufficient to maintain a county library.

HOUSTON (Total population, 45,935; rural, 29,389; negro, 13,529).

Illiteracy over 10 years, 12 percent.

There seems to be no reason why this county should be without any library of any sort, so far as reports show.

MONROE (Total population, 30,070; rural, same; negro, 15,732.)

Illiteracy over 10 years, 14 percent.

Monroeville County High School Library.

Half of the population being negro, the brunt of taxation falls on the other half or white population, and therefore conditions do not appear propitious for county library service.

A possible regional library might include Conecuh, with a wholly rural population of 25,429, of which 11,095 is negro and 16.6 percent illiterate. A surfaced road runs between the two county seats, Monroeville and Evergreen, which are some 30 miles apart.

MADISON (Total population, 64,623; rural, 53,069; negro, 19,272.)

Illiteracy over 10 years, 11 percent.

Huntsville (11,523) Carnegie Library(1930)

Income - $3,666

Circulation - 28,171.

ARKANSAS

LIBRARIES IN SEVEN COUNTIES

A letter from H. F. Steele, Assistant Commissioner of Education, Little Rock, dated March 17, 1934, states:

" The Free Library Service Bureau was discontinued in Arkansas in July 1933. Since that time we have not been able to give any library service to any county in Arkansas. Neither do we have any information on the work being done in any libraries of the state.

" The 1933 Legislature failed to make any appropriation for carrying on the Free Library Service Bureau. "

ARKANSAS (Total population, 22,300; rural, 17,373; negro, 4,916.)

DeWitt reports a high school library (1930).

This county has to the northeast the Clarendon Public Library in Monroe County and Helena Public Library in Phillips County.

To the west is Jefferson County Library at Pine Bluff, which is connected by good roads with DeWitt. See (1) map.

Of these three libraries the most promising for a possible contract for regional service is with the Pine Bluff and Jefferson County Public Library. Figures for 1930 give this library an income of $6,536 and a circulation of 90,000.

In Jefferson County (64,164) the library reported 38 stations.

DREW (Total population, 19,928; rural, 16,852; negro, 9,152)

An A&M College library is reported at Monticello (3,000)

For purposes of a regional library service let us consider Drew County with Chicot, in which, at Lake Village, is already a town and a high school library, and with Ashley, where at Hamburg there is a high school library. See (2) map.

The combined population of the three counties is 77,725, of which 59,096 is rural and 35,153, or close to one-half of the total, is negro.

Paved and otherwise surfaced roads run between Monticello, Hamburg and Lake Village.

Gatewood Memorial Library at Lake Village (1,585) reported in 1930 a circulation of 1,200, with $200 spent for books and periodicals.

A. & M. College at Monticello reported (1930) $1,000 spent for books and periodicals. There seems no reason why a library of this character should not permit its books, except those of a strictly reference nature, to circulate generally.

FAULKNER (Total population, 28,381; rural, 22,847; negro, 3,657.)

At Conway (5,000), the county seat, are three school libraries.

To the south, but 30 miles by paved road from Conway, is Little Rock Public Library, which serves Pulaski County. It would seem practicable to extend its service area by contract to Faulkner County. See (3) map.

HEMPSTEAD (Total population, 30,847; rural, 24,839; negro, 13,128)

Hempstead County reported in 1930 a small library at Hope giving town service, and a high school library at the same place.

Washington, the other town of the county, and the State Capital at one time, is reported to have about 500 population. According to newspaper account, its government is wholly in the hands of women, the new mayor being Mrs. Charleat Williams.

IZARD (Total population, 12,372; rural, same.)

Obviously the library facilities of a county so small in population lie in cooperation with neighboring communities, yet Izard's neighbors are equally destitute in this respect.

Lying as they do in " marginal lands " of the Ozark country, the sparsely populated counties present a special problem.

The triangle between the Black and White Rivers, roughly traced in pink on the map, challenges the imagination.

From Batesville a surfaced road runs to the Missouri boundary, passing through Melbourne and Salem, county seats respectively of Izard and Fulton counties.

Salem and Mountain Home, county seat of Baxter County, are linked by a surfaced road, which is crossed by another at Mountain Home which extends to Calico Rock and Newburg in Izard County.

Let us again make Batesville out ^{to} point of departure and take a second surfaced road, which connects with Federal Highway 63 at Hardy (5,000) in Sharp County, passing through Evening Shade.

From Hardy to Pocahontas (2,000), county seat of Randolph, Federal Highway 63 and State Highway 19 provide passage, with but a few miles of dirt road intervening. Federal Highway 63 passes, further south, Powhatan, county seat of Lawrence.

Thus every one of these seven counties are bound together by good roads. The sides of the triangle measure roughly 100, 65 and 90 miles and everywhere inside of it, of course, the distances must be less.

Population of the seven counties runs thus:

Baxter	9,519
Fulton	10,834
Independence	24,225
Izard	12,872
Lawrence	21,663
Randolph	16,871
Sharp	10,715
Total	<hr/> 106,699

IZARD (cont'd.)

With the exception of 4,484 (Batesville) in Independence County the population is entirely rural, predominantly white, and with a very low percentage of illiteracy. In Baxter County there is but one negro(1930); in Fulton, not one. The highest number, 894, is in Independence County. The total negroes in seven counties is 1,790.

In the above sketch may lie some suggestion for the development of a regional library to fit the common needs of seven counties which huddle between the two rivers and are knitted together by a network of roads.

PHILLIPS (Total population, 40,683; rural, 27,378; negro, 27,269.)

Illiteracy over 10 years, 10.7 percent.

Helena (8,316) Public Library

Income - $4,068

Circulation - 36,800

High School Library.

WASHINGTON (Total population, 39,255; rural, 29,098)Fayetteville (7,387) Public Library

SUMMARY

Library development has scarcely begun in Arkansas.

CALIFORNIA COUNTY LIBRARIES

A visitor to California forgot the tourist features long enough to remark on her county library service:

" Man, I have tried for years in an eastern city to get the library to place a branch in a thickly populated section of the town without results. I come out here and find county libraries placing branches everywhere that people can use them, even out in the wilds. They say that California's scenery is wonderful -- I think you have something here even more wonderful than your scenery."

The present county library law was passed in 1911, and forty-six of California's forty-eight counties, now have county libraries, with more than five million books available in four thousand branches and ²twenty-four hundred schools. In ⁷⁰⁸other state is there such development. One of the great reasons for this, if not the great reason, is the leadership of the California State Library in county library service, the result of the vision of Mr. James L. Gillis, state librarian from 1899 to 1916. From the beginning Mr. Gillis emphasized cooperation⁷¹ and service--two mighty forces.

It is no wonder that the California county library idea, with its practical ideals of cooperation and service, has been carried to the ends of the earth. It has gone to England, where nearly all the counties are operating libraries which lend to each other through the National Central Library. It has gone to South Africa where the state librarian of California traveled to advise in the establishment of a library system. It has gone to China

A visitor to California forgets the tourist literature and comes to realize on her county library service:

"Well, I have lived for years in an eastern city to see the library to place a branch in a library building section of the town without results. I come to find out that county libraries place branches everywhere but no one can use them, even not in the hills. They say that California's library is suffering --

I think you have something here even more wonderful than your library.

This present county library law was passed in 1911, and forty-six of California's forty-eight counties, now have county libraries, with more than five million books available in four thousand branches and fifty-four hundred schools. In other states is there such development. One of the great leaders for this, if not the best reason, is the leadership of the California

State Library in county library service, the result of the vision of Mr. James L. Gillis, state librarian from 1899 to 1916, and the belief of Mr. Gillis as realized county library service -- highly trained.

If it is to mean that the California county library law, with its practical ideals of cooperation and service, has been carried to the ends of the earth. It has been in England, where it is the result of the English library law of 1919, and also through the National General Library. It has been in other parts of the world where California libraries have been which now has over a thousand public and county libraries. Indeed, the California county library system, with the county as the unit of service and of maintenance, is pointing the way for a new basis of educational and political organization.

ADDENDA FOR GEORGIA

MERIWETHER:

Greenville Public Library - This library was closed for several years and was reopened about a month ago as a C.W.S.A. Library Project. A librarian, untrained, and one assistant have both been paid through C.W.S.A. to give 24 hours work per week since the last of December. The club house in which the library was formerly housed is still being used and the book collection belonging to the club has been organized under the direction of our Department, about 1000 volumes, and the library was formally reopened and is now doing good work in the community. The City of Greenville gave $25.00 to buy necessary materials, cards, pockets, etc., and is also furnishing heat, lights and water. We hope that means will be found to keep the library going when the C.W.A. project ends, but no definite arrangement has yet been made. The library is open free to all white people in the county. There is no service to negroes.

MITCHELL:

Camilla Public Library.

ADDENDA FOR ILLINOIS

Current data for libraries in ten counties was received under date of April 18, 1934, from Anna May Price, Superintendent of Library Extension Division. This is quoted from her letter:

" The libraries at Yates City and Earlville are township libraries, serving both rural and urban population. The other libraries provide a service to rural patrons on the basis of an annual fee averaging about $1.00 per borrower.

" The Library Extension Division provides books for any individual, in a community without a library, requesting such service. We have readers in all the counties so listed but it is not possible at the present time to give you the number served or the books circulated.

" All of the libraries, with the exception of Altona, which is an endowed library, receive the major part of their funds from taxes. The fines, non-resident fees and, in a few instances, gifts make up the rest of their income. "

As the new statistics do not present any particular features beyond the customary occasional decrease of income and the common increase in circulation, they have not been incorporated, but are attached in the form received.

SUMMARY

An interesting sidelight on the development of the public library in Indiana is the extent to which local libraries have availed themselves of the Carnegie fund. Of the 25 libraries noted in the ten counties, only ~~three~~ ^{those of} Otterbein,*, Bicknell, Michigan City, Carthage and Rushville are not reported as participating in the Carnegie fund.

Only Benton County reports a county library.

Warren County, with its ~~small~~ ^{entire} rural population, has no library.

The other counties considered have a more or less developed system of town libraries.

*Otterbein (BENTON) (612). Public Library, 3,876 volumes, 11,140 circulation, $2,548 income, $598 for books and periodicals.

CONCLUSION

In every country except Russia and North America is a democratic literature. There are no other countries and no other a political literature of the world.
 no country literature in America.

RAWLINS (Total population, 7,362; rural, same).

The State Librarian says, in a letter of April 6, 1934:

"A city library was established in Atwood last fall, sponsored particularly by the members of the American Association of University Women, but we have no further information about it yet. They probably haven't much information to give yet.

"Mrs. Dewey Radcliffe of Atwood was the moving spirit in the establishment of the library there.

"What Rawlins County really needs is a county library. We have had some calls from there for library information and possibly this library will prove a nucleus for county service later. The total population of Rawlins is 7,613, of which Atwood has 1,338.

"The Traveling Library has sent trunks into the county each year, but only about two or three hundred books a year all together. They may also have some small school libraries but we have no record of them here. "

The population of Rawlins County is scarcely sufficient to support a library. The combined populations of the six northwestern counties is but 44,201, which might support a good regional library, with headquarters say, at Colby which already has a Public Library reporting in 1930 $637 income and 10,000 circulation. There is also at Colby a High School Library. (See map).

The public libraries at Goodland and Oberlin made no report in 1930.

Recapitulation of library conditions as reported by American Library Association in " Books for the South, " 1933:

KENTUCKY: population 2,614,589, of whom 1,838,564 live within service area of its 68 public libraries. 776,025 people do not have public library service. The 68 libraries contain 703,070 volumes, had a circulation of 2,886,318 volumes, and spent $284,237.16 during 1931. Ten counties appropriate money for library service, 5 of them less than $1,000; 64 counties are without public library service of any kind; 12 libraries give service to negroes. There are permissive county and municipal library laws. Book lending service and advisory given by Kentucky Library Commission, Frankfort.

KENTUCKY

LIBRARIES IN TWELVE COUNTIES

(Recent data from letter of March 14, 1934, from Lena B. Nofcier, Secretary Kentucky Library Commission.)

BOURBON (Total population, 18,060; rural, 11,856; negro, 4,007.)

Paris (3,297) Carnegie Library.

County Service - None.

Income - $2,100 (1930).

Circulation - 31,014 (1930).

This county adjoins Fayette where a contract service is maintained with the Lexington Public Library. Distances between towns in the two counties are negligible, with three paved highways -- two Federal and one State -- intersecting at various points. In view of the relatively small population of Bourbon, a contract between the Lexington and Paris libraries might be worked out to place rural residents in Bourbon at least on a par with those in Fayette.

BOYLE (Total population, 16,282; rural, 9,553; negro, 3,171.)

Danville (6,729) Library.

County Service - None.

Income - 1,185.55 from dues, gifts, etc., Increase of $141 over 1930.

Circulation - 17,445. Increase of 1,145 over 1930.

County is too small for a tax-supported county service, Boyle is surrounded, except on the south, by counties that have a sort of county service, without tax-support. A regional, tax-supported library, with two or more counties contributing, might improve the service for all of them.

CALLOWAY (Total population, 17,662; rural, 14,771.)

No library except State Teachers College at Murray (2,891) which spent (1930) $7,000 for books and periodicals.

A group of eight counties in western Kentucky, bounded by the Ohio and Tennessee rivers and the Tennessee State line, form a regional group whose greatest distance is represented by the Tennessee border, which is 30 miles long. Four of the counties have small, entirely rural populations. The only city in the group is ~~is~~ Paducah (33,541) which absorbs most of Mc Cracken County, ~~which is~~ the only county in the group now appropriating money for library service.

The population features of the group appear thus:

	Total pop.	Rural	Negro
Ballard	9,910	9,910	931
Calloway	17,660	14,771	800
Carlisle	7,363	7,363	294
Fulton	14,927	11,425	3,153
Graves	30,778	22,601	2,194
Hickman	8,725	8,725	1,048
McCracken	46,271	12,730	7,762
Marshall	12,889	12,889	62
	<hr/> 148,525	<hr/> 100,564	<hr/> 16,244

The Paducah Library is a Carnegie institution. In 1930 it reported an income of $12,000, with 94,131 circulation.

It would appear practicable for some or all of the seven remaining counties in this area to contract with the Paducah Library to maintain branches at its county seat, as a minimum service to county residents. Economically this union would prove advantageous and make it possible to supply or improve county library service throughout the area.

FAYETTE (Total population, 68,543; rural, 22,307; negro, 16,449.)

Lexington (45,736) Public Library.

County Service - To patrons who come to library .

Income - \$13,052.38 from city, county and $\frac{1}{2}$ police court fines. Decreased by \$4,668 from 1930 figures.

Circulation - 86,460. An increase of 32,282 over 1930 figures.

FLEMING (Total population, 12,931; rural, same; negro, 614.)

A small county library was mentioned in the 1930 directory, but is not now in existence, having given its small collection of books some time ago to the high school library.

Obviously with so small a population Fleming County must work in cooperation with other communities to establish adequate county service.

Fleming forms one of a group of more than a dozen counties of northeastern Kentucky which report no public libraries whatever. Westward from Fleming are Nicholas, Bath, Lee, Menifee, Powell and Wolfe and southward and eastward are Rowan, Elliott, Morgan, Magoffin, Floyd, Pike, Martin, Johnson, Lawrence, Carter, Greenup and Lewis, all with no reported public libraries. To the north is Robertson County with its 3,344 population.

Discouraging to cooperation in the ordinary sense is the circumstance that the region is not very generally served by paved roads.

The population of the region is roughly sketch as follows:

	Total pop.	Rural	Negro	Illiterate
Bath	11,075	11,075	744
Carter	23,839	13,575	53
Elliott	7,571	7,571	1	11.6%
Fleming	12,931	12,931	614
Floyd	41,942	41,942	857	12.1%
Greenup	24,554	24,554	293
Johnson	22,968	22,968	46
Lawrence	16,713	16,713	124
Lee	9,729	9,729	140	11.3%
Lewis	14,315	14,315	62
Magoffin	15,719	15,719	44
Martin	8,584	8,584	1	12.3%
Menifee	4,958	4,958	34
Morgan	15,130	15,130	8
Nicholas	8,571	8,571	513
Pike	63,267	59,891	1,652	13.6 %
Powell	5,800	5,800	203
Rowan	10,893	10,893
Robertson	3,344	3,344	46
Wolfe	8,425	8,425	6

Of the above twenty contiguous counties wholly without public libraries, it is seen that all except Carter and Pike have wholly rural populations. These two, with Floyd, Greenup and Johnson, have perhaps sufficient population to maintain separate county libraries, though when its rural character is taken into account, this is questionable.

It is seen that the negro population is not considerable, except in Bath, Floyd and Pike counties.

Counties too small for adequate library service maintained without cooperation with outside forces are Bath, Elliott, Fleming, Lawrence, Lee, Lewis, Magoffin, Martin, Menifee, Morgan, Nicholas, Powell, Rowan, Robertson and Wolfe, the sum total of whose population is 153,759, or a little more than half of the city of Louisville.

It appears to be a field for the airplane. The district is comparable in population with Fresno County, California, where a county library has 243 branches, with $149,325 income, and almost a million circulation. Such a county plan could probably be spread over the fifteen small, wholly rural counties, making them one for library purposes, with the aid of an airplane, which might be in the ownership of the State Library Commission, for service where roads are not good.

HARDIN (Total population, 20,913; rural, 18,323; negro, 1,231.)

Brown-Pusey House Library ^{at Elizabethton} gives excellent county service to schools. County high school located near library. County residents receive service by coming to the library.

Income, $842.90, received from gifts, fines, appropriations by Brown-Pusey House funds.

Circulation, (1933) - 9,476.

HICKMAN (Total population, 8,725, all rural; negro, 1,181.)

In 1930, Hickman County Library at Clinton (1,204) (organized 1917) reported $1,267 income and 3,094 circulation.

In 1933, however, the county appropriation was discontinued, leaving the present status thus:

County Service - For those who come to the library.

Income - $204.42, from dues, gifts, etc..

Circulation - 3,568

See Calloway.

KNOTT (Total population, 15,230; rural, same; negro, 1,181.)

Hindman (508). (1930 figures). 5,355 volumes, 6,005 circulation, $2,605 income, $1,550 spent for books and periodicals. Village service.

Pippa Pass (40), a few miles eastward from Hindman. County Service.

Carr Creek (37), southern part of county. Village Service.

SURROUNDING KNOTT COUNTY:

Just over the line in northeast Perry is Ary with a library giving county service. No tax support. Farther west, in the northwestern corner of Perry is the small library of Witherspoon College.

Breathitt County to the north has a tax-supported county service.

Pike County to the east has the small library of Pikeville College.

Illiteracy in this group of counties very high 1920 but 1930 census shows below 10% except in Breathitt, where it was 16.5%.

OLDHAM (Total population, 7,402; rural, same; negro.)

La Grange (1,120) Public Library.

County Service but limited for lack of funds.

Income - Not reported. From city council.

Circulation - Not reported.

Obviously an inadequate service which could be improved by a contract with the Shelbyville Library on the south.

SHELBY (Total population, 17,679; rural, 13,646; negro, 2,637.)

Shelbyville (3,391) Public Library

County Service - To residents who pay $1.00 a year subscription, and come to library.

Income - $982.58 from city appropriation and county membership.

Circulation - 14,687.

Note: This represents an increase in income over 1930 figures of $103.58, and in circulation, an increase of 3,803.

A High School Library.

SIMPSON (Total population, 11,336; rural, same; negro, 1,751.)

No libraries of any sort reported. Warren County to the north, has a city Library at Bowling Green, and is connected with Simpson by Federal Highway 73. Only 35 miles intervene between the county seats and a contract system with Warren seems the best way out for Simpson.

SUMMARY

The State is handicapped to an unusual degree by small county populations, among which cooperation must evolve before a rural library service ~~evolve~~ develops.

ADDENDA FOR LOUISIANA
(From letter of Essae Martha Culver, Executive Secretary, Louisiana Library Commission, Baton Rouge, March 26, 1934.)

ACADIA PARISH:

Small membership library. Many individual borrowers from State Library.

BEAUREGARD PARISH:

Interested in forming a library. Many individuals borrow from State Library.

CLAIBORNE PARISH:

At Homer is a Woman's Club Library which receives $100 a year from city.

LAFOURCHE PARISH:

Thibodaux Public Library receives $100 from city, $50 from parish, $125 from membership fees, with other small sums, under direction of Woman's Club. Untrained librarians. No service to negroes. Circulation, 1933, 500.

LIVINGSTON PARISH:

Probably too small to adequately maintain a ^eparate service, but hopes to develop a regional service. Many Livingston residents borrow direct from this office, since they are the adjoining parish and not too far to motor to Baton Rouge.

TENSAS PARISH:

One small high-school library was trying to give community service at Newellton. The white people of this parish are very intelligent, but the negroes outnumber the white. Approximately 70% of the total population are negro. The people are interested, but have no funds. We have a great many borrowers in this parish, and we have been invited into the parish to discuss possibilities of establishing a library several times.

" I am sorry to have to report so few parishes with library service, but since this Commission was established and started to develop parish libraries we have had the big Mississippi flood and the depression. Consequently, only five parishes have so far been able to develop library systems. The Louisiana Library Commission has over 27,000 borrowers scattered over the state, and if we could afford to handle children's books and fiction we could have a million borrowers, I am convinced."

Miss Louise Stanley, Chief
Bureau of Home Economics
United States Department of Agriculture
Washington, D.C.

Dear Miss Stanley:

This very tardy reply to your letter of March 14th will probably be useless at such a late date nevertheless I will send it on a chance that it may be in time to serve your purpose.

I regret to say that by and large Maryland libraries at their best are not what they should be and the particular ones about which you inquire are not the outstanding ones in the State. At least two of them are not.

- A - Public Library at Taneytown
 - 1- County service - No
 - 2- Amount and source of income -
No appropriation. Has membership dues of $1.00 per year and only 25 patrons
 - 3- Circulation
They own only 1048 books and the average weekly circulation is 15, annual 780
Population 1000
- B - Free Library at Westminster
 - 1- County service - No
 - 2- Amount and source of income
$450. $25.00 annually from Woman's Club. An occasional benefit and yearly membership dues of $1.00
221 patrons
 - 3- Circulation - Daily average 70, yearly, 11,804
- C - Talbot County Free Library at Easton
 - 1- County service - Yes, but no book car
 - 2- Amount and source of income
$3,500 present year
Appropriation $2000
Private donations $500
Fines and rentals $750
Balance $300 released by bank which had been closed

-2- Miss Stanley

3- Circulation

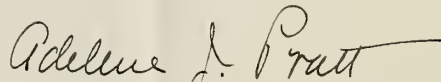

Book collection 8,887

Circulation daily 213, yearly 63,872

Population of county 18,583

In the face of the many handicaps and limited resources we feel that our libraries are doing excellent work and have faith in the growing appreciation of the value of such service and the importance of adequate support. I am happy to say that many of the Maryland libraries make better reports than those above.

Very truly yours,

Adelene J. Pratt,
State Director.

SUMMARY

The town unit system of libraries prevalent in Massachusetts is distributed through rural sections, in the three counties under consideration. Of these three, Franklin County has the largest percentage of rural population. In towns in Franklin under 1,000 population, reporting, the following figures are presented:

MASSACHUSETTS

PUBLIC LIBRARIES IN THREE COUNTIES (cont'd)

SUMMARY

	Circulation	Income
Ashfield;859...:	8,584	: $1,321
Bernardstown.....893...:	12,589	: $1,391
Conway.....900...:	8,636	: $3,921
Gill.....983...:	11,302	: 577
	3,635	: 30,121 :$ 11,210

Taking this as a cross-section of rural service, we have 8 books per capita circulation, but to obtain this there was an expenditure of 37 cents per book circulation.

In Worcester County fifty -five libraries serve the population of 295,931 outside the metropolitan city of Worcester.

" Grand Rapids and Litchfield are the only ones of these libraries doing county work and as Litchfield receives only $100 from the county at present it can scarcely be called a county library.

" In Murray County the only public library is one at Fulda maintained by the Reading Club. According to the last report... they had about 1200 volumes. 239 borrowers, and reported a circulation of about 30 per week.
They received $12 a month from the council which I believe is to pay the librarian's salary."

LIBRARY STATISTICS

The statistics of libraries for 1933 show a total circulation of 10,372,628, a decrease of about 6 per cent since 1932, and a total expenditure of $984,869.80, a decrease of 16 per cent since 1932. Since decreased appropriations have made it impossible to keep up the book collections, it is hardly to be expected that circulation could continue to increase as it had in the preceding years. At the same time, there are reassuring indications that an effort is being made to stabilize library incomes.

Hastings received an appropriation from the council and is again listed as a public library. A public library at Gilbert, opened in January 1934, is included in the list, for the sake of completeness, and Browerville and Howard Lake formerly maintained by clubs have been turned over to the village. New libraries have been started by clubs at Arlington, Lamberton, New York Mills and Sacred Heart. Libraries at Belle Plaine, Elbow Lake and Wells have been reopened through CWA projects.

COUNTY LIBRARIES

The statistics of county work as given in the above table are also included in the statistics of public libraries, excepting Hennepin and Ramsey Counties, where the county work is a separate department, and the county fund is kept separate. In all other cases, the county appropriation is added to the general library budget, and the work is handled by the regular library staff as part of their work, so that the county circulation is included in the public library statistics as the only satisfactory way of indicating the complete volume of work. Percentages and per capita are based on city population for purposes of comparison.

Although there was a decrease of about 13% in expenditures for county service, there was a slight increase in circulation and the number of distributing points remains practically the same.

Interest in the organization of County libraries has been stimulated by CWA projects, and to aid in these projects a statement concerning the establishment and organization of county libraries has been mimeographed for distribution.

This contains a statement of the laws under which county libraries may be established, and emphasizes the provision for school library co-operation, since it is only through contracts with the schools, that library service may be unified. If contracts are made, the school library, may, if desirable, turn over to the county system, the books in their libraries and the school library fund including the state library aid. Certain books remain in each school permanently, but books for pleasure reading are passed from school to school, giving all pupils access to all books in the county.

In Hennepin County, 8 schools are branches of the county system with permanent collections, but service is given to 86 rural schools from the book wagon. A new school and community library was installed in the Groveland School early in January, making the total number of branches 22.

In Ramsey County, all of the 29 rural schools have contracts, and the full amount of their library fund including state aid ($820) is turned over to the county fund. The aid is refunded directly to each school district. Teachers continue to make more and more use of the County Library Service.

In Koochiching County, the service is completely unified through contracts with the county commissioners and also with the three school districts, including unorganized territory.

In Pennington County, 25 schools have contracts for the current school year.

Other counties lend books freely to the schools, as shown in the table, but have not taken advantage of this feature of the law. If all schools in a county combine resources with the county library, this means a substantial increase in the book fund, and better service for all.

In Ramsey County, books are lent to the County Farm and County Rest Camp, but no record of circulation is kept. 36,231 volumes were also lent to patients in the City and County Hospital, which is included in the hospital circulation of the St. Paul Public Library and not counted in the County circulation.

It should not be forgotten that the Minnesota law also permits contracts between library boards and boards of county commissioners or governing bodies of any neighboring town, city or village in the same or adjoining counties. This makes possible the regional library in which several adjoining counties may cooperate.

If there is any interest in your community in organizing a county library, or even desire for information about it, consult the Library Division. We will send printed matter explaining the plan, outlines for making a library survey of your county, suggestions as to plans of work, and a speaker when requested.

AMERICAN LIBRARY ASSOCIATION

Montreal Conference

"Charting the Course for Libraries" will be the theme of the Fifty-sixth Annual Conference of the American Library Association, to be held in Montreal, June 25 to 30.

Gratia A. Countryman will give her presidential address at the first general session, Monday evening, June 25, according to the tentative program. Significant trends in government, social conditions and education, and what they mean, or may mean, to libraries will be the subject of the second general session, Wednesday morning, June 27. New library responsibilities which will grow out of these trends will feature the third general session Friday morning, June 29. The subject for the fourth general session, Saturday afternoon, June 30, will be announced later.

"The Trustee's Responsibility for the Library Plan of Tomorrow" will be discussed at a meeting of the Trustees Section during the conference, A. D. Thornton, president of the Westmount, Quebec, Public Library Board of Trustees, and chairman of the section, presiding. Library trustees in both Canada and the United States are cordially invited to attend and to participate in the discussion.

Two aspects of library development will be emphasized at this session, one, regional cooperation, with a discussion of geographic areas of service and cooperative financing from national, provincial, state, or regional sources; and, second, standards for library service with emphasis on personnel.

A consultation service is planned to assist trustees with their individual problems and the section will also maintain a hospitality booth for board members.

"Convincing Annual Reports" will be the topic of one Publicity Round Table. Reports to appropriating bodies and to the public will be discussed, and there will be a display of reports to the public which will be criticized by judges on the basis of a score card modeled after one for municipal reports used by the International City Managers' Association.

Hotels—The Windsor Hotel, Dorchester and Windsor Streets, will be the headquarters for the conference. Full information about other hotels in Montreal was given in the February A.L.A. Bulletin. An announcement of travel plans and post conference trips in this country and abroad appeared in the same Bulletin.

Railroad Rates—A round trip rate of a fare and one-third from all points in the United States is assured. From St. Paul this would be $48.31, first class. Lower berth one way is $8.75.

A. L. A. Committees

Besides the honor of having a Minnesota librarian, Gratia A. Countryman, as president of the American Library Association, the following Minnesotans are listed in the Handbook as members of committees for 1933-34:—Bibliography, Frank K. Walter, University of Minnesota; Subcommittee on Readable Books of the Board on the Library and Adult Education, Glenn M. Lewis, Minneapolis; Book Buying, Harold G. Russell, University of Minnesota; Cataloging and Classification, Amy C. Moon; College Library Advisory Board, Sister Antonia, College of St. Catherine; Finance, Mrs. Jennie T. Jennings, St. Paul; Fire Insurance, Edward C. Gale, trustee, Minneapolis; Hospital Libraries, Mrs. Elva B. Bailey, Minneapolis, Chairman; Institution Libraries, Miriam E. Carey, St. Paul; and Perrie Jones, State Board of Control, St. Paul; Library Work with Children, Della McGregor, St. Paul; Membership, Florence D. Love, Faribault, Mrs. Susan E. Stuhr, Minneapolis; Resources of American Libraries, Helen K. Starr, Hill Reference Library, St. Paul; Salaries and Employment, Clara F. Baldwin, St. Paul; Special Membership for Minnesota, Clara F. Baldwin; Subscription Books, Helen Campbell Baird, Minneapolis; Work with the Blind, Mary Heenan, School for the Blind, Faribault; Work with the Foreign Born, Irma M. Walker, Hibbing.

MINNESOTA LIBRARY ASSOCIATION

The Minnesota Library Association will hold its 1934 meeting at Glenwood, Aug. 30-Sept. 1. Information will be published later in regard to hotel accommodations and rates.

The program will follow the lead of the Montreal Conference in studying state and national planning for libraries, recent trends in government and education, regional cooperation and the results of the recent federal aid given through CWA and the Emergency Education Program.

At the request of Gratia A. Countryman, president of the A.L.A. a state committee on library planning will be appointed in line with the A.L.A. Committee.

TWIN CITY LIBRARY CLUB

The fall meeting of the Twin City Library Club was held on Wednesday, Dec. 6, 1933 at the library of the Hennepin County Medical Society. Dinner was served by the Fountain Terrace Restaurant. Ninety-nine members and guests were present.

Mrs. S. Stuhr, chairman, presented the report of the nominating committee and the following officers were elected: President, Lura Hutchinson; Vice-president, Jessie L. Arms; Secretary-Treasurer, Katherine Yerxa.

On motion of Mr. Walter a vote of thanks was given to Miss Norris and to the Hennepin County Medical Society for their hospitality.

Ruth Rosholt gave a report on some of the meetings of the A.L.A. particularly of the catalog sections.

Dr. R. E. Scammon of the University of Minnesota, the speaker of the evening, gave a very interesting talk on York, England. By sketching on a blackboard and showing slides, he made it especially graphic and entertaining.

After this talk an informal reception honoring Gratia A. Countryman, newly elected president of the A.L.A. was held. Tributes and toasts were given by Mr. Walter, Miss Baldwin, Miss Patten, Miss Helen Starr, Miss Cloud, Mrs. Jennings, and Miss Augusta Starr.

LOIS M. FAWCETT,
Secretary.

TWIN CITY CATALOGERS' ROUND TABLE

The fall meeting of Twin City Catalogers Round Table was held at the College of St. Catherine, St. Paul, Minnesota, on November 21, 1933. Sister Cecil, President, presided. The Relation of the Catalog Department to the Other Departments of the Library was the subject of the paper read by Sister Cecil. This meeting was really more than a catalogers' round table. Most of the libraries in the Twin Cities were represented; in many cases every department in the library had a representation. This made for a most interesting and vital discussion on the possible ways of securing and keeping a close cooperation between the Catalog Department and the other departments in the library.

The Twin City catalogers are deeply indebted to Sister Antonia, who donated the dinner, thus enabling the small group to pay, for the year 1934, a contributing membership in the A.L.A.

Thirty-seven were present at the meeting, January 23rd, at the Minnesota Union, University of Minnesota Campus.

In response to a letter from Miss Akers, Chairman of the Committee on Library Terminology, Sister Cecil was asked to appoint a committee to work on Miss Akers' committee.

Miss Starr read an excellent paper on the revision of subject headings. Catalogers from departmental and special libraries, as well as others present, took part in the general informal discussion that followed.

ANNE KALLIO,
Secretary-Treasurer.

DIVISION OF LIBRARY INSTRUCTION UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA

Responses to the announcement concerning courses in Library Instruction in the Summer School have come in in very small numbers. In no case have there been more than two or three applicants for any specific advanced course. For this reason, the only courses which will be offered during the Summer Session this year are the three elementary basic ones in Cataloging, Reference and Classification. The first two will be conducted by Lura C. Hutchinson, of the regular staff of the Division. The course in Classification will be conducted by Alma M. Penrose, of the St. Cloud Public Library. Additional information can be obtained as usual from the Summer Session Office, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, Minn.

A course in Subject Bibliography, conducted by Harold G. Russell, Reference Librarian and Assistant Professor of Library Methods, will be offered for the first time during the Spring quarter of 1934. It will emphasize the research and bibliographic side of bibliography. It should prove useful for students who are more interested in the reference and bibliographic side than children's work which has heretofore been the only general field open for those who wish to fill up their programs during the same quarter.

FRANK K. WALTER, Director.

Appointments

Eleanor Lee Broughton, 1933, will be married this spring to Philip Cramer Scott.

Laila Kojola, 1932, is children's librarian at Hibbing.

Roumelle Lundeen, 1933, is librarian of a school branch at Madison, Wis.

Maurene Morton, 1932, was married in January to Philip Neville.

Ina Ramsey, 1933, was married on Christmas day to Duane Eames. They will live in Bend, Oregon.

Rachel Rothnem, 1932, has been appointed librarian of the State Sanatorium for Tuberculous, at Ah-Gwah-Ching, beginning April 1. There is a library for patients, and also a separate one for staff members.

Beryl Struke, 1929, Hennepin County library, was married December 23 to Leopold Leigl, of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra.

Eileen Thornton, 1931, is assistant in the Circulation Department of the University of Minnesota library.

Jessie Wolf, 1932, is secretary to the librarian at Hibbing.

Folwell Club

The Folwell Club organized for the year 1933-34, at a supper meeting in November, at the home of Helen Manuel. Jean Gardiner Smith took the group on a trip through Japan with her, showing many interesting relics and costumes she had brought home. Officers for the year were elected including: Jean Gardiner Smith, president; Helen Manuel, vice president; Golde Rapaport, secretary and Nancy Morrison, treasurer.

At Christmas time, the girls entertained at Tea. Hildred Brohaugh played carols on the violin and Ingrid Miller sang. Santa Claus was there, bringing promises of answering every special request.

At the end of the fall quarter Miss Smith had an offer to teach high school English in Red Wing, so the club lost its president. She was replaced by Bertha Hager.

On Feb. 14, the club honored Miss Carey at a St. Valentine's Day Tea. She was presented with a corsage bouquet. The organ from the Psychology department was brought over to the library class room. Ingrid Miller sang and Miss Carey graciously played while the girls clustered about her and sang old and familiar songs.

The publications committee is at work on the first copy of Bibliomania. Hope Nichols is acting as Editor-in-chief.

On Feb. 25, Mrs. F. K. Walter entertained the officers and committee chairmen of both the active and alumni organizations at her home.

The committees are made up of the following students: Social committee, Dorothy Ruble, chairman, Helen Beim, Mae Emery, Marjorie Fish, Adele Spellisey, and Ramona Jack; Publications, Hope Nichols, chairman, Mary Lyon, Elizabeth Tautges, Esther Nelson, Golde Rapaport, Carl Dahl, and Mary Magaw; Welfare, Jeannette Schwartz, chairman, Bergliot Stephenson, Doris Greenwood; Program, Helen Manuel, chairman, Mildred Schumacher, Ruth Johnson, Jane Gamble and Katherine Friberg.

GOLDE LAURA RAPAPORT,
Secretary.

REGISTRATION OF BORROWERS FOR A SMALL PUBLIC LIBRARY

(Note:—An accurate and up-to-date count of borrowers is one of the most important items in library statistics. The following simple method, as carried out in the Redwood Falls Public Library, is based on suggestions given in "Essentials in Library Administration," by McCullough and Van Buren, p. 63, A.L.A. 1931).

Records: Two card files, one alphabetical file and one numerical file. Book for recording number of withdrawals each month.

Procedure: Each borrower fills out an application card which calls for the following information: name, address, occupation, grade in school and age for school children, a reference and, for borrowers still in grade school, the parent's signature.

Each application card, after it is filled out, is assigned a number (first borrower is number 1) and dated the current date and the date the card will expire. The expiration date recommended is three years from the date the card is issued, according to the revised A.L.A. standards.

On the reverse side of the application card, across the end, the borrower's number and name are written or printed. All borrowers' application cards are thus filed for the alphabetical file. This file is consulted for borrower's number when a book is drawn, and the number is copied on the book card. In some libraries each borrower is supplied with a small identification card containing his number, which he would show the attendant at the charging desk. This would save the time of looking up each borrower in the file and would speed the charging of books.

The numerical file consists of cards containing the borrower's number, name and the date the card expires. If the borrower is a school child, the grade in school and the parent's name is also included. This is often helpful in identifying children with certain families in a town so small that street addresses are not used to any great extent.

The number of borrowers withdrawn each month should be recorded in a book so that at any time the last number of the numerical card file may be noted, the number of withdrawals subtracted and thus the total number of card holders in the library would be known.

If a re-registration is to be made, begin with number 1 and number through consecutively until all borrowers are re-registered. Then as new borrowers are added, continue the consecutive numbers until such a large number is reached that it is cumbersome for efficient use. Using the three-year expiration system makes re-registration gradual and keeps the borrowers' card file free of cards for borrowers who are no longer in the town.

RECENT BOOKS OF MERIT Non-Fiction

Kimble, Ralph A. How to collect stamps; a basic course of instruction in the world's most popular pastime. Rev. illus. ed. Grosset, 1933, 1.00. 383

Discussion of stamps and their side lines, the stamp finder, sixteen pages of illustrations and an index make this new edition more useful.

Way, Frederick, jr. Log of the Betsy Ann. McBride, 1933, 2.75. 386

Older boys and men will thoroughly enjoy this young man's breezy account of his adventures, humorous and otherwise, as a Mississippi river steamboat owner.

American Association of Engineers. Vocational guidance in engineering lines. Mack Printing Company, 1933, 2.50. 607

More than forty engineers have supplied definite information as to methods, qualifications and compensation in various engineering fields and their special branches. Such up-to-date information is much needed.

Getman, Arthur Kendall. The young man in farming. Wiley, 1933, 1.75. 607

This straightforward discussion of farm problems appeals to young people of junior high age and over. It is practical and convincing.

Anderson, Maxwell. Mary of Scotland: a play in three acts. Doubleday, 1934, 2.00. 812

Currently a New York success, this play has many lines of real beauty for the reader. To be placed by his Elizabeth the Queen.

Firkins, Oscar W. Selected essays. University of Minnesota Press, 1933, 2.50. 814

Minnesota libraries will welcome this addition to the works of her distinguished author.

Adamic, Louis. The native's return. Harper, 1934, 3.00. 914.97

Delightful impressions of a young Slovenian's return to Yugoslavia, on a Guggenheim fellowship. Splendid reading for everyone as well as informing.

Fleming, Peter. Brazilian adventure. Scribner, 1934, 2.75. 918.1

Occasionally flippant, frequently humorous and generally interesting, the young English author tells of his party's jungle adventures in search of the missing Captain Fawcett.

Cole, George Douglas Howard. The intelligent man's review of Europe today. Knopf, 1932, 3.00. 940.5

"Admirably lucid interpretation of the political and economic conditions of Europe from the World War to July, 1933." Readable.

Goldsmith, Margaret Leland. Christina of Sweden, a psychological biography. Doubleday, 1933, 2.50. 921

Eccentric and unconventional, she was a "lively problem" during her brief reign and after her resignation when 26 years old.

Howard, John Tasker. Stephen Foster, America's troubadour. Crowell, 1934, 3.50. 921

This is the first adequate biography of the man who, dying almost unknown in the poor ward of a New York hospital, contributed so much to American folk music.

Johnson, James Weldon. Along this way. Viking, 1933, 3.50. 921

An outstanding leader of the Negro race, as writer, editor, diplomat, educator and musician, his story of his life will interest everyone.

Le Gallienne, Eva. At 33. Longmans, 1934, 3.50. 921

The popular actress has written her story hastily. Nevertheless it is unusual and adds a good deal of valuable theater information.

Fiction

Aldrich, Mrs. Bess Streeter. Miss Bishop. Appleton-Century, 1933, 2.00.

A "sincere tribute to real teachers the world over." For women readers.

Bentley, Phyllis Eleanor. A modern tragedy. Macmillan, 1934, 2.50.

Likened to An American Tragedy, with an English setting, Miss Bentley describes present conditions in the cloth mills she knows so well.

Burman, Ben Lucien. Steamboat round the bend. Farrar, 1933, 2.00.

Sentimental though pleasing story of an old Southern shanty-boat couple. Another Mississippi river tale.

Evans, Evan. Montana rides! Harper, 1933, 2.00.

He has "shattered the formula" of the usual Western—"exceptionally absorbing and exciting."

Gibbs, Sir Philip Hamilton. The cross of peace. Doubleday, 1934, 2.50.

Much of the European situation since the War is revealed in this love story of a French officer and a German girl, his sister's English marriage and his own French marriage. Will be illuminating to many serious readers.

Jarrett, Mrs. Cora Hardy. Night over Fitch's pond. Houghton, 1932, 2.50.

Not a mystery story in the usual sense, it is absorbing in its psychological implications and well written, too. Both men and women will read it.

Lewis, Sinclair. Work of art. Doubleday, 1934, 2.50.

Opinions of its importance vary, but there will be many calls for it.

Masefield, John. Bird of Dawning; or, The fortune of the sea. Macmillan, 1933, 2.50.

A China tea-clipper race is most exciting. Decidedly good for men and older boys.

Nordhoff, Charles. Men against the sea. Little, 1934, 2.00.

Readers of the Saturday Evening Post already know much of this, but to other men and boys this sequel to Mutiny on the Bounty will be stirring, indeed.

O'Faolain, Sean. A nest of simple folk. Viking, 1934, 2.50.

"A novel of sustained power and real vitality" with "touches of idealism and excellent descriptive passages," this is a contribution to modern Irish literature.

Parrish, Anne. Sea level. Harper, 1934, 2.50.

A round-the-world tour, in Grand Hotel fashion, provides many opportunities for the author's satiric touch.

Roberts, Kenneth Lewis. Rabble in arms; a chronicle of Arundel and the Burgoyne invasion. Doubleday, 1933, 2.50.

Readers of history in fiction, and those who enjoyed Arundel, will wish to read this, too.

Smith, Lady Eleanor Furneaux. Christmas tree. Bobbs, 1933, 2.50.

Seven trees and the real stories behind their buyers, as opposed to the salesgirl's guesses about them, make pleasant reading.

*NON-FICTION IN THE LIBRARY

by Harriet C. Long, Librarian Oregon State Library.

Frequently when I visit the smaller libraries, I am depressed by the uninteresting collection of books other than fiction which the library offers its patrons. So pathetically few of the live books of travel, of biography, of current problems have been purchased, and are part of the library's collection. The librarian usually tries to tell me that "people here only want the fiction." In every community there are people who have become discouraged when visiting the library, because of the lack of stimulating, worthwhile books. There are others who would enjoy the books of travel, biography, nature, and other subjects, if the librarian herself had read them and could tell enough to interest the people. It is not enough for the library to merely circulate the books for which people ask. The library must display other books—books to tempt patrons—even as the merchant displays his wares. Only as the library does this, can the public library mean that "development and enrichment of human life" which is its chief function.

But I can hear you ask, "How can we do it on our very limited funds?" This should not be an impossible problem in these days when so many interesting books appear in $1 editions, many of them only a year after publication. Make it a rule to buy a few of these every time you buy new fiction, and you will be surprised at the appreciation a few of your more discriminating patrons express. Then, too, you can "feature" the non-fiction which comes to you in collections from the State Library. Lastly, be sure to read some books other than fiction yourself, so that you too can grow in your service to the community.

TRAVELING LIBRARY NOTES

2000 more books were sent out as package libraries from the Library Division in the last three months than were mailed during the same three months a year ago. Traveling libraries for school use are all out in the state and many special collections have had to be assembled to help the teachers in their work. Traveling library business has never been so good!

There was no time to prepare and care for an exhibit during the Short Course week at the Farm School. However a display was arranged in the Fireplace Room of the Home Economics building of attractive children's books which may be bought at Woolworth's. Several commendable new ones had been published at Christmas time.

Would librarians like to borrow this exhibit of ten-cent books? A schedule can easily be arranged if librarians will let us know when they wish them. There is also an exhibit of editions of Mother Goose, Treasure Island and Alice's Adventures in Wonderland which may also be borrowed for the same purpose. Please let us know if these book displays are desired.

In addition to the books sent to C.C.C. camps in the fall, seven traveling libraries have been sent to recreation centers for transients.

New lists of books in the open shelf collection are Philosophy and Psychology, Science, Religion, Art, 1933 additions and a fairly extensive list of Minnesota Authors. The last list makes no pretensions to completeness, but we will be glad to send it to librarians who can use it. Dates have been given when easily available and a brief list of titles by each author, with those starred which may be borrowed from the Library Division.

From the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace we have received the following books: Hobart, Oil for the lamps of China; Morton, In Scotland again; Diebold, The book of good deeds; Beard, The future comes.

Some of the books added to the open shelf collection are:

Bernstein. L'affaire Jones.

Buck. The mother.

Conner. Shake hands with the devil.

Lardner. Round up.

Sprigge. The old man dies.

Van Dine. Dragon murder case.

Bennett. College and life.

Bliss. History of wood-engraving.

Brant. Dollars and sense.

Chapman. Autobiography of a bird lover.

Gates. Five fur traders of the Northwest.

Gladwin. Ethics.

Hicks. The great tradition.

Longworth. Crowded hours.

Miller. Eighteen.

Nicotra. Arturo Toscanini.

O'Neill. Ah, wilderness!

O'Neill. Days without end.

Rockwell. Peonies.

Sullivan. Our times, v.5.

Winwar. Poor, splendid wings.

MILDRED L. METHVEN, Librarian.

PERSONAL

Edna G. Moore, formerly librarian at Duluth, went to Baltimore, January 1st, to become head of the History Department in the Enoch Pratt Free Library.

Alice Foster, librarian of Nokomis Junior High, Minneapolis, was married Dec. 2nd to Ives Scott of Rochester.

Alberta Hughes, librarian of the South Hibbing Branch of the Hibbing Public Library, was married December 26 to Dr. Carl Marvel of Urbana, Ill.

Mary R. Radford, formerly chief of circulation, succeeds Miss Hughes as librarian at the South Hibbing Branch. Helen Y. Prall, formerly children's librarian becomes chief of circulation. Laila Kojola, who has been secretary to the librarian, will be children's librarian, and Jessie Wolf was appointed secretary to the librarian, February 15.

Mrs. Frank Bloomfield succeeds Mrs. Ingalls as librarian at Crosby. Mrs. Ingalls, who resigned on account of her health, has been appointed a member of the library board.

Wilmet Besson is now librarian at Two Harbors succeeding Alice Wurster, who resigned September 1st.

Thyrza McClure, librarian of North High School, Minneapolis, for many years, has retired, and will make her home in California.

Mary Walkup, formerly assistant at West High, has been appointed to succeed Miss McClure.

Mrs. Marion Lomax Stewart, librarian at the Miller Vocational School, Minneapolis, and president of the School Librarians' Section of the M.E.A. was married August 16th to Mr. Rodney Frederic Kelley of Minneapolis.

In Memoriam

Dr. Warren Upham, formerly librarian and superintendent of the Minnesota Historical Society died on January 29th, in his 84th year. As librarian of the Historical Society, Dr. Upham was an ex-officio member of the Public Library Commission, from its organization in 1900 to 1914 when he was succeeded by Dr. Solon J. Buck.

During his tenure of office, he attended every meeting of the Commission, and showed a broad interest in library work as a whole.

Dr. Upham was well-known as a geologist and archaeologist and rendered invaluable services to the librarians of the state in his publications on Minnesota history.

NEWS FROM PUBLIC LIBRARIES

Minneapolis—Following a 20 per cent cut in the library budget which would have necessitated a three months closing in 1934, a publicity committee was appointed from the staff consisting of Miss Rosholt, chairman, Miss Rood, Miss Matson, Miss Jones and Miss Starr. Using the slogan "Save the Library," a series of dodgers and posters was prepared to inform the public of library service and activities, and the effect of budget cuts. The response was gratifying. Letters poured in and there was a large attendance at the city council meeting, when an additional appropriation of $75,000 was approved.

The Board of Estimate then gave the Library Board a fixed budget amounting to $340,000, about the same as 1933. Since the sum is no greater than last year, it will avert the 3 months closing, but will not allow for longer hours, and may involve the August closing.

The Lake and Bloomington Station was closed permanently on December 23rd. The children's books formerly in this Station have been moved into Irving School to form an elementary school library station, which opened February 13th.

Farmington—The library sponsored by the Community Club was moved into more attractive quarters in the Jefferson Hotel building in November. A drive for books last fall brought in many books and $20 cash.

Gilbert—The public library opened January 8th, with about 400 books on the shelves. During the first month, there was a circulation of 1186, and in February, the registration had reached 409. The library is open daily from 12-6 and 7-9. About 65 newspapers and magazines have been ordered. A formal opening will take place later in the spring when the kitchen and dining-room in the basement are finished.

Red Wing—A deficit in the library fund is to be made up from the contingent fund in order to keep the library open until June, and the council will increase the tax levy next year.

South St. Paul—The first of two branches of the South Saint Paul Public Library was opened February 14th in the Wilson School. The other is to be opened early in the fall in the Washington School. The branches will be in charge of Miss Bennett of the Public Library staff.

Gifts

Northfield—A fund for furnishing a local historical room in the library has been created. A gift of $25 received in 1919 from the family of the late Dr. John L. Scofield has grown to $70.81. Added gifts of $40 from the Federated Clubs Council and $19 solicited by the Northfield News, make a total of $129.81. A display case costing $20 has been purchased, leaving a balance of $109.81.

Other recent gifts are:

Cambridge—$25 from the Junior Twelve Club for purchase of new books for the Community Club library.

Owatonna—A living Christmas tree, given and lighted by the 19th Century Club, also a new World book.

Sleepy Eye—$22.52 for books from two Camp Fire Groups which have disbanded, to be spent for new children's books.

Publicity and Social Activities

Crookston—Miss Claire Winzenburg, the librarian, gave a talk on the County library, its development and practicability for Polk County at the Winter Shows women's meeting in December.

Dawson—A patriotic tea was sponsored by the P.T.A. on Saturday, Feb. 24. About 300 people came to see the newly decorated library. The proceeds were $35.52. The Study Club donated $20 to help pay for paint and varnish.

Eveleth—A book review tea was held at the public library on February 3rd. An exhibit of soap sculpture was on display.

South St. Paul—The series of free lectures sponsored by the South Saint Paul Public Library was opened Wednesday, February 7th, by Meridel Le Sueur. These were followed by two by James Gray on February 21st and 28th.

Library Benefits include a dramatic recital at Blooming Prairie sponsored by the Book Club and the Study Club, and benefit card parties at Graceville, Mabel and Owatonna, sponsored by the 19th Century Club.

Exhibits of interest are: Soap sculpture at Owatonna, the annual doll contest in Virginia and Polish art, dolls, clothes and pictures lent by Eric P. Kelly, author of The Trumpeter of Krakow, to the libraries at Fairmont, Mankato, St. Peter and Worthington. This exhibit may be obtained by addressing Mrs. Eric P. Kelly, Whitaker Apartments, Hanover, N. H.

LIBRARIES AND CWA

Reports which have been received indicate that public and school libraries in Minnesota have profited greatly by the Federal aid offered through the Civil Works Administration. In these days of reduced budgets and crippled staffs, it has been a godsend to have extra help for the many odd jobs which must always be put aside under the pressure of current work and to have buildings repaired, and shining with fresh paint, varnished woodwork and furniture, and clean walls.

The unemployed librarians, too, have joyfully taken advantage of this opportunity to demonstrate their ability.

When it was announced that women would be employed under CWA, letters were sent to all unemployed librarians in the state, so far as known, and to libraries and schools informing them of this opportunity, and mimeographed directions for Checking and Cataloging a School Library were sent out.

A report from CWA headquarters, dated February 1st, shows that 547 women were employed in libraries in 60 counties. This included those doing mechanical and clerical work as well as technical.

The following is a summary of work done, with reports of large projects:

Library Organizing—Through the efforts of Miss Carol Lillo, District Director of Women's Employment for Kittson, Mahnommen, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau Counties, a district field librarian has been appointed to "promote worthwhile library projects in the district, supervise and inspect cataloging, classifying and bookbinding by Civil Works employees in libraries, give instructions in book-repairing to untrained librarians, and improve and make available to adults the rural school libraries of the district." Adeline Dock of Greenbush, Roseau County, University of Minnesota Division of Library Instruction, 1933, has been appointed to this position and began work March 5th.

At Waverly, a library was started with donations of books and traveling libraries. The use of a doctor's waiting-room was donated. Elaine Perra, University of Minnesota, 1932, was librarian in charge.

Libraries were reopened at Belle Plaine, and Wells, with librarians paid by CWA. An effort will be made to make these permanent projects.

Hours Increased—The additional assistance has made it possible to increase hours of opening at Elk River, Grand Marais, Grand Rapids, Olivia, Red Wing and Sauk Center.

Librarians were employed in the libraries maintained by women's clubs at Lanesboro and Milaca.

Cataloging and Records—In Northfield, where a trained librarian was available, a thorough job of re-cataloging was carried out, revising the card catalog, checking subject headings, rearranging books, weeding out old material, and making possible-purchase files in different classes. Typists working under the librarian's direction have completed the recataloging at Redwood Falls and Worthington. Re-cataloging, filing, checking shelf-lists, inventory, sorting magazines, arranging pamphlets and clipping files are some of the projects carried on through CWA assistants at Albert Lea, Chisholm, Crookston, Dawson, Faribault, Fergus Falls, Glenwood, Little Falls, Mankato, Morris, Owatonna, Paynesville, Red Wing, St. Peter, Sauk Center, Stillwater, Thief River Falls and White Bear.

At Albert Lea, the city was canvassed for missing books, and at Bemidji gifts of books were solicited. Four extra workers were assigned to branches in Koochiching County.

At St. Cloud, one of the CWA assistants gave special assistance to the adult education classes. Bibliographies and reading lists were prepared on various subjects, and given to the teachers.

Books were mended, recased, cleaned, re-marked and shellacked at Bemidji, Brainerd, Chisholm, Cloquet, Detroit Lakes, Duluth, Grand Rapids, Hopkins, Morris, Northfield, Ortonville, Preston, Sauk Center and Wabasha.

School Libraries—Although complete reports have not been received, school libraries have had the same type of assistance in many places. In Carlton, Clay and Martin Counties libraries in rural schools were checked, books mended and re-labeled.

The South St. Paul library is supervising the reorganization of the School libraries in Rosemount and West St. Paul, the work being done by CWA workers.

New Buildings—Projects approved under PWA include a village hall and library at Bovey, village hall, auditorium and library at Dundas, a memorial building with a room for the library at Elbow Lake. At Lindstrom, a village hall and library is being built, the village furnished material and the labor provided by CWA. The library is in a room 20x16, with shelving for 2500 books opening out of a lobby 20x30 feet. This room will also serve as a club room for public organizations. The building also contains a kitchen, and the fire department occupies a room at the rear.

Building Repairs—General repairs, including new shelving, new roofing and carpentry work are reported at Carlton, Dawson, Duluth, Graceville, Grand Marais, Granite Falls, Owatonna, Sauk Center and Thief River Falls.

Redecorating, including painting, refinishing of woodwork, and treatment of floors is reported at Anoka, Bemidji, Brainerd, Crookston, Dawson, Little Falls, Madison, Mankato, Preston, Sauk Center, Stillwater, Wabasha, White Bear and Willmar.

Cleaning of woodwork, walls or shelves was done at Albert Lea, Faribault, Glencoe and Thief River Falls.

Minneapolis—The Minneapolis Public Library has had 30 librarians with training, employed on CWA projects. Of these 5 have been working at Central, keeping open evenings, 10 were assigned to branches, 10 book-mending, and 5 or 6 taking inventory. Four expert catalogers have worked on the joint catalog project, making a catalog of important books or source material in the libraries of the Twin Cities. These are now engaged on a Union list of serials in the same libraries.

65-75 men have been employed on building projects, painting, plastering, steamfitting, carpentry and repair, masonry, roofing, going over every building from top to bottom. Bond issues of $15,000 for material have been made.

St. Paul—On the 4th of December, 1933, our first group of Civil Works assistants reported at the Public Library. At that time, we had seven general library assistants, five book menders and four cleaners. Since then we have added four special catalogers, including one supervisor.

The five book menders have to date (February 19) mended 5,843 volumes. In addition to this, the four young women who are working in the school libraries are mending books, as well as taking inventories and helping the teachers with classes which are using the library in their school projects.

The four cleaning women having cleaned all the accessible portions of the main library have also been assigned to different branch libraries cleaning books, book-shelves and especially cleaning up after the painting projects. The seven general library assistants have worked in all departments of the library making bibliographies, checking lists, bringing records up to date which the regular staff has been too busy to keep up.

Two young men, also general library assistants, have helped with inventories, putting lists of books on special subjects into usable form, etc.

The special catalogers have been engaged in a survey of source material in the Public Library, the James J. Hill Reference Library, the State Historical Library, the Ramsey County Medical Library and also all the local colleges: Concordia College, Hamline University, Luther Seminary, Macalester College, St. Catherine's College, St. Paul Seminary, St. Thomas College, St. Paul Luther College.

In addition to these library workers, a crew of painters has redecorated the three Carnegie branches on the inside: (St. Anthony, Riverview and Arlington), and also painted all the outside woodwork of these three branches. The Central library is now being cleaned and repainted with a crew of 12 men in the forenoon and 10 in the afternoon, including supervisors.

The "Puppet Play Project" has just been announced to begin to report Saturday, Feb. 24.

JENNIE T. JENNINGS.

University Library—CWA workers have rendered a real and permanent service to the University Library. Two were assigned to the Catalog department where they made possible the completion of a list of subject headings in use in the department and the completion of considerable other unfinished work which the staff had not been able to do. In the Reference department several thousand pamphlets have been made available through a rough checklist and classified. Many items worthy of binding turned up in the search. Newspaper files were collated and put into shape for research workers. Theses were sorted, a checklist of United States Government documents drawn up and very considerable progress made in organizing an unexpectedly large, but very much disorganized collection of foreign documents. In the Order department, the accumulations of more than thirty years in the way of duplicates, gifts and other unaccessioned material were turned over to the CWA workers. The shortage in current funds released considerable time on the part of several trained workers of the department. Under their supervision very substantial progress has been made. Many exchange lists will be sent out in the rather near future and the whole collection made available for exchanges or the worthlessness of unusable items demonstrated. Numerous additions to incomplete sets of scientific and other serials, many added copies of books needed for class and research use and a large number of variant editions will be added to the library collection.

SCHOOL LIBRARIES DEPARTMENT

*THE TEACHER, THE LIBRARIAN AND THE BOOKS IN THE CLASSROOM

by

Margaret R. Greer

Librarian, Board of Education, Minneapolis.

I know a primary school library where a beautiful room is given over to beautiful books,—all the attractive picture books of the last few years. The children are invited rather formally by the principal to come at certain periods to this lovely room. It is an occasion. They are allowed to sit in the little chairs while the principal holds a book up in the air in front of them for a hasty glance at the charming illustrations and reads or tells the story of them. By using their imagination they guess that it was a picture of a dog or maybe it was a cat and they crane their little necks as the story progresses.

"Don't the children ever look at the books by themselves?" I asked.

"Oh, no!" came the quick reply, "How long do you think the books would last if the children were allowed to handle them?"

"Too long," I thought, but did not answer.

No, this is not the kind of responsibility I mean when I say that teachers and librarians must face responsibilities in accepting all the interesting new books and periodicals into the schools, but rather that which Dr. Jesse Newlon means when he says, "It is the responsibility of the librarian to serve, not to dictate; it is the responsibility of the teacher to make the library function effectively in the lives of the boys and girls." If the teacher and the librarian accept this responsibility for classroom libraries in the elementary schools, we can look for certain favorable outcomes.

It is not the purpose here to put forth the arguments in favor of classroom libraries. That they meet the needs of the modern curriculum is evidenced by their growth and wide use, especially in the elementary schools. The teacher who follows a planned course of study or who plans one for herself in the modern manner finds that she must work with many books in addition to the usual textbooks, and that to get the greatest use out of these books they must be a part of her classroom equipment whether there is a library in the school or not. Hence, the classroom library.

The mere acquisition of a classroom library is in itself a responsibility. Books must be gathered from school board reserves, from school and public libraries, from state departments of education, from teachers, pupils, and parents. No matter what the source, the fact remains that the greater portion is a mass of borrowed material for which the teacher must care as long as it remains in her room. That the teacher is sometimes loath to accept the responsibility of borrowing is due largely to the fact that she has never worked out a simple method of keeping track of books by using the children in the room to help her and not due to the fact that she is careless or so overly conscientious that it seems a burden. Librarians have not made it any easier for her through the attitude they have taken toward fines and lost and mutilated books, —not that carelessness should be condoned but librarians should have sufficient understanding of the problems involved to know that there are times when it is most unfair to hold the teacher responsible for books which she has borrowed for the children to use. The service which the librarian gives should go beyond the mere loan of the books. It should include also suggestions for the care and circulation of the books while in the classroom. There is no great mystery about the system which librarians use to keep track of the vast number of books in their possession. The system is perfectly adaptable to a small collection and can be easily followed by teacher or pupil. It only needs to be thought out, explained carefully to the children who are to use it, and followed out in the daily school program.

As an example of how pupils are able to care for the books loaned to a classroom, let me describe a second grade activity. All the books which make up the library are borrowed. The children make the shelves for the books from orange boxes. A committee visits a nearby branch library and consults with the librarian. They learn that they need first of all to make a list of all the books which make up their library and which shows who owns the borrowed books, that they need a book card for each book and a box in which to file the cards when the books are loaned out. A meeting of the class is held. The rules for the care and loan of books are decided upon. A committee is appointed to make the necessary lists and book cards. A librarian is added to their staff of class officers. It becomes her duty to enforce the rules, run the borrowing system and check with the teacher at the end of the week to see that all the books are accounted for, before turning over her office to the librarian for the following week. She wields a date stamp with vigor, informs Mary that her book is overdue, tells John that he hasn't borrowed a book all week and that it is time he took one out. She presents to the class meeting the case that Billy's puppy chewed the cover of one of the books and asks the class to decide what should be done about it.

The educational advantages of such an activity are many and obvious enough. In addition, however, the teacher is relieved of checking books in and out and the responsibility for the care of the books falls upon the children instead of upon her. A glance at the book cards tells her quickly the books liked best by the children and aids her in selecting books for another time. The book cards also show up the reading avidity or lack of it in her group and lead her to the pupils that need help and encouragement.

Similar organizations have been worked out for the other grades, which vary according to the needs of the individual rooms. A fourth grade room which had a shifting collection of books made use of the blackboard just above the shelves where the books were kept to list all the books which belonged to the collection and the source from which they were borrowed.

*Paper read at the meeting of the National Council of Teachers of English, Detroit, 1933.

When the unit of work was completed and the books were all returned to the places from which they had been borrowed the list was erased from the blackboard and the list for the next unit was written in its place.

There are any number of variations of this library plan which will work with the children virtually in control. It has been my experience that pupil help in a library is dependable and accurate if supervised and simply organized. Pupils who are given the opportunity of running their own classroom libraries of books collected from libraries and from personal loans, and of assuming the care of public property while they are in school become responsible borrowers in a community.

To encourage the loan of library books for classroom libraries, to understand the difficulties involved in circulating books in the school room and to serve in every way to eliminate any administrative difficulties is the responsibility of the librarian. To know where books may be borrowed and to create in herself and in her pupils the right attitude toward borrowed material used in the classroom is the responsibility of the teacher.

Although there are today any number of good printed lists which are suggestive to the teacher in selecting a group of books for a classroom library,—lists which are conveniently grouped to show the subject matter of the books, or which are carefully graded to show vocabulary difficulties, or which are annotated by the pupils themselves to show the reading interests of children,—yet there is no printed list which is entirely adaptable to a particular school situation. The only list which is continuously valuable to a teacher is one which she makes from her own observation of the books which she borrows from time to time and uses with the children, a list in which she records the pupils' likes and dislikes, which tells that this book was easy for the children to read, that another book was too hard for the brightest child in the grade, that the material in this book is now out-dated and new material should replace it when the next class comes along to this point in the course of study. This is the type of record which would be invaluable if kept systematically and shared with the librarian who purchases the books for use in the schools. The teacher has an opportunity to observe the uses of books which the librarian never has. Because the teacher has shared with the librarian some of her experiences with classroom libraries, the librarian is becoming aware of difficulties that she previously did not have to cope with. Librarians in public libraries and also in school libraries have dealt almost entirely with the children who like to read. These children may be slow or avid readers but they have a desire for reading or they would not of their own initiative appear in the libraries. But with the classroom library the problem of the child who does not like to read must be faced. Attendance in the classroom is compulsory. As there are books provided to stimulate the brighter child over and above the interests in the textbooks, so must there be books provided to build up a background so that the textbook material becomes interesting to the slower child. The easy book for the child with more mature interests but with backward reading abilities is not so easy to find. There are a number of studies which are helpful, such as the Winnetka study and the University of Chicago study of adult reading interests and abilities. This is not only a problem before teachers and children's librarians but is also a problem for librarians dealing with adults at the present period of our social growth. Additional leisure hours with limited incomes have sent adults in ever increasing numbers to public libraries, not only for recreational reading, but also for books which will help them to understand the economic situation in which they find themselves. Librarians are finding that they do not know the right books to give these people. Perhaps there are none. Such books may yet have to be written. They need books with simple sentence structure, with a vocabulary suited to a sixth grade pupil or even lower, and with explanations which assume that the reader has no background whatsoever in the subject presented. That these people find themselves in this dilemma at this time reflects back upon the reading program which they followed as pupils in school. Apparently their interest in reading was never caught or they would not have abandoned it as they left school and now be faced with the difficulty of picking it up again. There are, of course, other phases which enter in, but the point to think about here is whether the children in our classrooms today will also leave school without further interest in reading.

The choice of books, then, for the pupils in this lower group becomes increasingly important. Teachers see evidences that the problem is at least being faced in the number of little readers for the first three grades, in the books which depart from the general literary reader into the fields of science, art, social studies and even into the field of arithmetic. Children are having a chance to build up gradually a vocabulary suited to subjects other than English.

That some librarians still cling to the literary tradition and fail to recognize some of these teaching problems was brought out at a library meeting not long ago. A speaker saw fit to ridicule the use of a word list. An author, it seems, was asked to write for a fifth grade reader. Her manuscript was returned to her with one of the word lists asking for corrections in the vocabulary used to comply with the list. The speaker felt this was an insult to the author and the stifling of all imaginative and colorful words with which the child might come in contact in the school room. If all authors of books for children of the fifth grade were confined rigidly to the use of a word list, the ridicule might be warranted, but there is a point here which the librarians in that audience who accepted this ridicule missed entirely, and that is that the author was writing for a reader, a book from which children were to learn to read. They failed to recognize the fact that children are still learning to read at the fifth grade level, and that difficulties placed in the reader which slowed up the child's comprehension of the subject matter really interfered with any interest which the child might feel for the story. That the scientific investigations and findings of teachers should be ridiculed seems to indicate a lack of vision on the part of authors and librarians in understanding the problem of the child who does not like to read, who is really deficient in the mechanics of reading. If the reading population of our country is to be increased, and authors surely should be interested in gaining a wider reading public, if we are to avoid the situation of today of the adult who cannot comprehend even the simplest book on modern social problems, then more books which are interesting and stimulating to the child must be written in a vocabulary which he can understand and with a simple sentence structure which does not confuse him.

I do not dispute with those who contend that if a child's interest is caught he will master any vocabulary difficulties which may lie in the way. I only ask that there be some material with which to catch his interest. There is a responsibility, then, for both teachers and librarians to select books for a classroom library which take into account the various abilities of the children of the group, to select vivid, thrilling books which attract a child instinctively, to give the child great freedom in the matter of choice. Let the children themselves help in the matter of selection. Their natural enthusiasms carry from one child to another and if the book be mediocre, it is not long before they discover the fact for themselves, especially if there are worthwhile books at hand with which to draw a comparison. Pupils who have immediate access in the classroom to a great variety of books which have been selected to meet their reading abilities and interests develop a reading taste and a desire to continue with their reading after leaving school.

With the educational trend toward the number of books instead of the single textbook and with the establishment of the library in the school came the necessity for teaching the children how to use books and how to find things for themselves in a library. Librarians took up the problem and began experimenting with library lessons. There was no open opposition to this—perhaps in some places a demur was made when time had to be taken from a special subject in order to get it in—but there was a certain amount of indifference on the part of teachers and principals. The librarian had to find, rather blindly, an opening wedge wherever she could in the rather heavily crowded school program. As the experiment progressed and results could be measured, educators became more and more interested and a number of courses of study in library methods began to appear in print. Some of these were sponsored by city or state curriculum departments. The majority of these were programs to be carried out by the librarian in the school. It was suggested that the lessons be related, if possible, to some course of study already in use in the school such as the English course or the social studies course, but the lessons continued to be separate units of work. The longer the work was carried on by the librarians and the teachers, who now were beginning to share in the experiment, the more convinced they became that the lessons had no particular value unless contributing directly to the classroom work, that every subject needed the skills included in these library units as a daily part of the preparations of lessons, that the time to teach the use of a book or a library tool was when the child needed to use it. They became convinced that the integration of library lessons with the daily classroom work was necessary and that the teacher rather than the librarian should give the lessons.

The teacher is taking over this work with interest although she may still call upon the librarian for aid in presenting certain units, for she finds that it actually relieves her in making assignments and places the responsibility for the preparation of the lesson where it should be, upon the child himself. New courses of study contain suggested activities for teachers to follow in giving these lessons and bibliographies of useful material have been printed in educational periodicals. One of these lists appears in the Wilson Bulletin for October, 1933. Instruction in work-type reading now takes a place alongside of recreational reading.

In work-type reading the child is made aware of the book as a physical unit and is taught how to master its mechanics in order to find whatever information he may want. His first instruction comes with the first book which is put into his hands in the kindergarten or first grade. He learns that the book has a name, and an author and an illustrator. As the books which he uses become more complicated he meets the table of contents and later the index. He finds that although he could learn to read without knowing his A B C s that he must have a knowledge of their consecutive order to help him in locating material in an index. Tables and charts make letters and numbers take on a new significance. The reading of a map and globe are necessary preliminaries to the social studies lesson. The use of the dictionary becomes closely associated with the spelling lesson as well as with the reading lesson and drill in the use of encyclopaedias naturally precedes the lesson in science and the social studies.

With the use of classroom libraries the manner of making assignments is changed from the old page or chapter notation, and drill in the use of books becomes a necessary preliminary. The assignment runs something like this:—The questions for study are decided upon usually by the pupils and teacher together. The key words in each question are decided upon by the class. Each child uses such books as he may choose which the teacher has selected for this unit of work. The index is used to locate the key words, the pages are found and the material is quickly skimmed to see if the answer to the question is there. The child must present a good response and he must decide whether the material he has found gives an adequate answer. He does this by comparing it with the material found in other books and he selects the material to go over carefully from the book which he thinks gives the best answer. If a divergence of opinion is found, his judgment is called into play. He must decide which he thinks is the best authority. A copyright date may play a part in his decision or a third book may throw the balance of opinion. During his entire study he is developing skills which will always be valuable to him. No lecture by a librarian or casual lesson in a library can take the place of this daily drill under the watchful eye of the teacher. The pupil becomes entirely independent of the teacher and the basic textbook in searching down the answers to his questions. In the library of his school other skills are added to his accomplishments. He learns to use the card catalog and index to periodicals so that the entire resources of his school and public library are at his command. Pupils who are drilled in the handling of books as tools for the preparation of their daily lessons develop a skill which will enable them always to find information in books when that information is needed, and which will lead them to an intelligent use of the public library in adult life.

Perhaps it is natural enough that some teachers hesitate to accept this responsibility of the free assignment. It means, of course, that she must be well grounded in the literature of the subjects which she is to teach. It means that she must be alert and open-minded in receiving the newer books and periodicals as they appear. It means, too, that she must become an expert in supervising the study and use of this material. She must, in fact, accept the library method as part of her teaching plan. To assign certain pages to be studied in a textbook is much simpler and much easier surely for the teacher and possibly much easier for the pupils. If the teacher is aiming for a definite pupil response to an assigned topic, the textbook method will give her that; but if she is looking for the development of reasoning and thinking pupils, then she must free them from dependence upon her and upon a textbook and must make the "library function effectively in the lives of the boys and girls."

What are some of the favorable outcomes, then, of accepting these responsibilities? You will find, I think, a teacher unharassed by the borrowing and lending of many books for her class assignments, a librarian eager to buy the books which are suited to the classroom library, confident that the books will be used to advantage and be well cared for by the pupils, and children who have skill in handling books because they like to read.

ART IN THE LIBRARY OF THE GLENCOE SCHOOL

A room inviting one to pause, to linger, to stay and forget the world outside is the library in the new Glencoe Grade and High School Building. It occupies a large, well lighted area on the south side of the second floor where it is easily accessible.

The librarian's charging desk is within the doorway connecting the library and the senior study hall. In addition, one may pass directly from one room to the other through a door near the corridor wall. The arrangement of rooms as indicated should prove a step in advance, for more and more we wish to bring students into direct touch with the library. Moreover, both rooms may be in charge of one person who is both librarian and study room teacher.

Not a little of the attractiveness of the rooms is due to the beautiful pictures and statuary. Above the bulletin board on the west wall of the study hall hangs a copy in black and white of Sargent's "Prophets of Israel" mural in the Boston Public Library. This was given to the school as a student memorial several years ago. The other pictures are of more recent purchase.

Several years ago the custom of senior class memorials was inaugurated. The custom has been followed from year to year and has resulted in worth while and beautiful gifts for the school. For some time the several classes left various sums of money on interest, the amounts to be used later to purchase certain specified articles for a new school building when the dream of a new building should become a reality.

In this planning through the years, fortunately pictures and statuary were not forgotten; they were definitely suggested by the classes of 1928 and 1929. When the new building was almost ready for occupancy, committees from these two classes met with the principal to make tentative selections. Next, Mr. Harrington Beard of Minneapolis was called into consultation with a result satisfactory to every one concerned.

Now it chanced that the class of 1925 had left as a memorial two pictures Alexander's lunettes in the Library of Congress, "The Cairn" and "Oral Tradition," the first two in the series entitled "The Evolution of the Book," with the suggestion that later classes complete the series. The representatives of the class of 1928 decided to add "Hieroglyphics" and "Writing on Skins." These four pictures, in beautiful colors, now hang on the north wall of our library, above the bookcases, with space waiting for the third long panel which we trust will be the choice of some class in the near future. This same class had sufficient funds to purchase in addition portrait busts of Washington by Houdon, and Lincoln by Volke which adorn the south wall of the adjoining study room. Above the book shelves on the east end of the library are hung three framed casts in high relief from the "Cantoria Frieze" by Luca della Robbia, the original of which was made in the fifteenth century for a choir loft in Florence, Italy. This beautiful frieze is the choice of the class of 1929. Neither must one forget to mention a reproduction in beautiful colors of Edwin Abbey's "Galahad the Deliverer" a memorial gift to the school from the parents of a young boy who would have been a member of the first class to graduate from our new building. In spirit, in tone and coloring, the sculptured frieze and pictures harmonize beautifully with the oak cases, the walnut furniture, the ivory walls and beamed ceiling of our library, and are a potent factor in creating that atmosphere which one associates with restful reading and study.

SCHOOL LIBRARY CLUBS

Minneapolis—The February meeting was held at the Y. W. C. A. on February 7 at 5:30 P. M. Merle Potter, dramatic critic of the Minneapolis Journal was the speaker.

The question as to what contribution the organization wished to make to the A. L. A. fund was brought up. Favorable action was taken later.

The March meeting will take place March 7 at the Y. W. C. A. at 5:30. The speaker will be W. I. Nolan who will speak on his life in Washington.

—JEANNETTE W. BRICE, Secretary.

St. Paul—The St. Paul school librarians met with Miss Martha Buist and Miss Anna Guthormsen for a pleasant dinner and an informal discussion of problems, November 24. Owing to the pressure of C. W. A. work no other meetings have been held.

MINNESOTA SCHOOL LIBRARY LIST Spring Supplement, 1934

April fifteenth is the tentative date of publication for the Spring Supplement of the Minnesota School Library List.

A book selection committee of ten school librarians, and other specialists have assisted in its preparation. A notable feature has been the systematic effort to secure the honest reactions of pupils.

—HARRIET A. WOOD.

CHANGE OF PRICE

Announcement is received that Weedon's Modern encyclopedia, listed in the School Library List, Supplement, 1933, Part 1 at $59.75, is now available, after March 10, at $24.75 for a single set f. o. b. Chicago, three sets or more on one order $19.75 per set.

—H. E. WHEELER,
2831 South Park Way,
Chicago, Illinois.

UNION LIST OF NEWSPAPERS

A union list of newspapers published after 1820 is being compiled by Miss Winifred Gregory under the direction of the Bibliographical Society of America. A detailed account of the project will be found in Library Journal, February 1, 1934. Cooperation of libraries throughout the country is desired, and Miss Gertrude Krausnick, librarian of the Minnesota Historical Society asks that librarians in Minnesota report to her regarding any files in their libraries, or in private hands in the community.

INDEX TO LIBRARY NOTES AND NEWS

The index for volume 10 of Library Notes and News, covering the years, 1931-1933 will be sent out with the June number to all libraries on the exchange list, and to public and school libraries which have preserved their files for reference upon request. Please drop us a card if you desire the index.

Join the A. L. A.

Gratia A. Countryman, president of the American Library Association, Ida Faye Wright, chairman of the A. L. A. Membership Committee, and Florence D. Love, member for Minnesota, extend a cordial invitation to librarians, trustees, and friends of libraries who are not already members of the Association to join.

Individual dues are $3 and $5, the former amount entitling a member to receive nine news issues of the Bulletin, and the Annual Reports; the latter bringing with it the Bulletin, Handbook and Proceedings. Institutional memberships ($5) are open to libraries. About 1,500 libraries take such memberships to support the American Library Association and to secure for their institutions the Bulletin, Handbook and Proceedings.

Applications for membership may be addressed to the A. L. A. Membership Department, 520 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

A large membership from Minnesota would be a fitting tribute to our president.

Recapitulation of library conditions as reported by American Library Association in " Books for the South, " 1933:

MISSISSIPPI: population 2,009,821, of whom 293,763 live within service area of its 33 public libraries. 1,716,058 do not have public library service. The 33 libraries contain 288,231 volumes, had a circulation of 1,077,571 volumes and spent $82,365 during 1931. Eleven counties appropriate money ~~for library service~~ for library service, 7 of them less than $1,000; 43 counties are without public library service of any kind; 2 libraries give service to negroes. There are permissive county and municipal library laws. Book lending service and advisory service given by Mississippi Library Commission, Jackson. (At present without an appropriation.)

HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUBS STIMULATE USE OF STATE LIBRARY.

Miss Essie M. Heyle, State Home Demonstration agent for Missouri, with headquarters at Columbia, used her organization in cooperation with the Missouri Library Commission, to place loan collections of books in farm homes, during 1933.

This effort was motivated by several considerations, the principal of which was to lay a foundation for better use of leisure.

Three hundred and forty-three, or about one-third, of the Home Economics Extension clubs in the State appointed reading chairmen, whose function it was to find what women wanted to read and to order the books from the State Library.

Books were sent out by the Library in collections of 50 volumes, which might be kept for six months, at only the cost of postage.

Usually the work of exchanging the books was handled by volunteer workers. In Pierce City (1,476), Lawrence County, the church in which Harold Bell Wright used to preach was converted into a library with shelves, built and painted by interested citizens, and some low chairs were put in for children. Books were collected from homes, the State Library sent a loan library and money was contributed for magazine subscriptions.

RUTH O'MALLEY, Secretary
HARVEY LUTZENBERGER, Shipping Clerk

Extract from Section 13436, Revised Statutes, 1929.

The Commission shall make an annual report, on or before the first Wednesday in January in each year, to the General Assembly, when that body shall be in session any such year, and when it is not in session any one year, the report shall be made to the Governor, who shall cause the same to be published, and shall also communicate a copy to the next General Assembly. Such reports shall state library conditions and progress in Missouri, and shall contain an itemized statement of the expenses of the Commission. Such reports shall be printed in the same manner and under the same regulations as the reports of the executive officers of the State.

LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

Hon. Guy B. Park, Governor of Missouri, Jefferson City, Missouri.

My dear Sir:

As required by law, the Missouri Library Commission presents herewith its report for the year 1933.

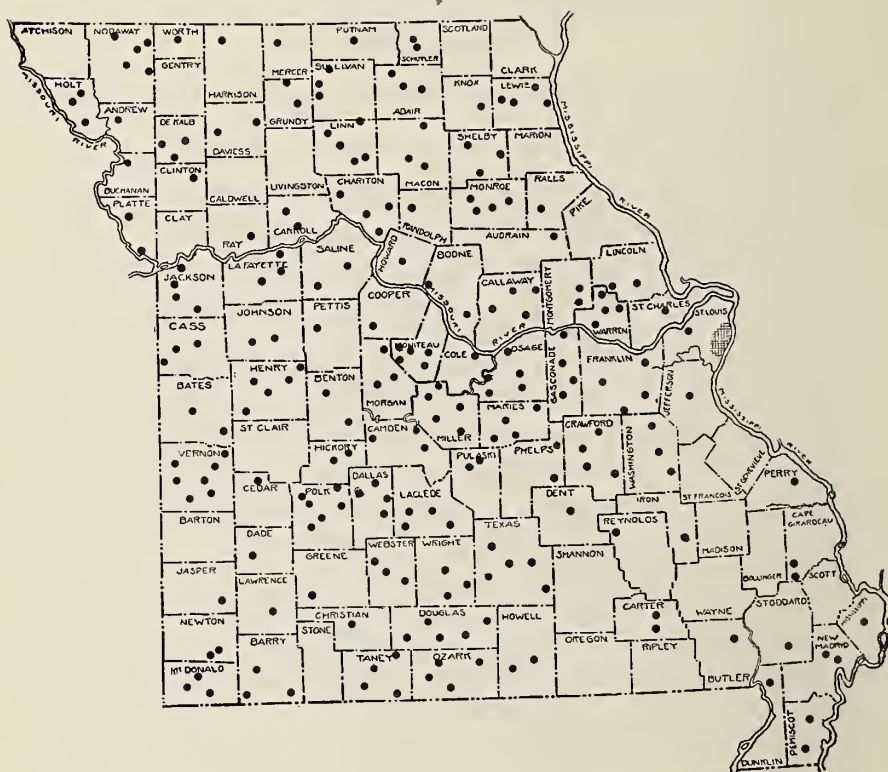

We regret that, on account of a lack of funds, we have been unable to meet hundreds of demands for books that have been made upon us during the year. Our appropriation was the smallest we have had in many years and the need for books, greater than ever. Two million Missourians are still practically without libraries. Many of these have been without work; books would have afforded many of them a harmless and helpful means of escape from many of the evils of the depression. One woman said about our work: "It means much to a lonely country woman, unable to buy books."

Taking our resources into consideration, this is an excellent report. Through the efficiency of our office force, a very little money has been made to bless thousands of our citizens with that which money cannot buy.

Respectfully yours,

WARD EDWARDS,

President.

REPORT OF THE SECRETARY

The Missouri Library Commission was organized in 1907 by an act of the General Assembly of that year and its two-fold duties specified by statute: To give advice to all school and public libraries, as to the best means of establishing and maintaining them and to circulate books within the state to communities, schools and individuals otherwise without free book service.

The Commission Within the last year the Library Commission has suffered a drastic reduction in appropriation and, as a result, in its staff and services. After the first of April the services of a stenographer were dispensed with. Also at this time Miss Eleanor Schalleross, who had charge of the cataloging and traveling libraries, took a leave of absence and later accepted a position in the Kirkwood Public Library. In June Miss Jane Morey who had served the Commission so efficiently for the past eight years resigned her position, her resignation to become effective August 1st when the present secretary assumed her new duties.

New Libraries It is a regrettable circumstance that at time when it was so badly needed one of the functions of the secretary could not be exercised. There was no money available for traveling. In a number of communities book lovers have attempted to satisfy the great demand for reading material by forming small collections as a nucleus of a local library. It was not possible to visit these localities to give them the aid in organizing and cataloging, that is one of the functions of the Library Commission. The Gibson community of Steele has formed such a collection which has grown enthusiastically. In May the library in Jackson moved to larger quarters near the business center. The Malden Public Library has moved into a new building. It has been reported that the Harold Bell Wright Memorial Church at Pierce City has been deeded by its trustees to the Parent-Teachers Association of that city to be used as a public library. Richmond Heights has obtained assistance through the Civil Works Administration to help organize a new library, as has Ste. Genevieve. The latter city has recently erected a new building to be used as a museum and library. Columbia Public Library moved into new rooms on the second floor of the new Municipal building. The rooms were planned especially for the library and are ample and satisfactory for the present. The main room is large enough to take care of the expansion of the next few years. However, the desirability of a separate building designed especially for library purposes has not been lost sight of.

Miss Kathleen McDonald, a trained librarian, has been appointed to take charge of the State Hospital Library at St. Joseph. During the four months of Miss McDonald's supervision the circulation has increased materially.

Book Service

Despite the fact that no books were sent out for a short period in April, when the continued existence of the Library Commission seemed so uncertain, and that no fiction has been sent to individuals, except for club review, the circulation has only decreased 7,193. Over 200 specific requests for fiction were refused. During December 31 requests for traveling libraries could not be filled. At one time in November while the staff numbered three persons, 33 requests had to be held up because it was impossible to find time to answer them.

*As most of the books sent out from the Library Commission are circulated by other libraries many times, often as many as thirty in rural schools, it can be estimated that approximately 250,000 books were read during the year.

The Clear Type Books are a collection deposited in the Library Commission by the Commission for the Blind, to be circulated to pupils of rural schools having such defective sight that they are not capable of pursuing their studies with books of ordinary type.

Commission Members

Only two meetings of the Commission members were held during the year. At the call of the President, Miss Summersby, Mr. Schuttler and Mr. Lee constituted a quorum February 9th when Mr. Edwards was re-elected president. In June Mr. Edwards, Miss Summersby and Mr. H. O. Severance of the University Library in Columbia, representing Dr. Williams, were present at a meeting in which Miss Morey's resignation was accepted and the present secretary appointed. Only traveling expenses are allowed to the members and the total expense of these meetings amounted to $49.20. Mrs. Luella St. Clair Moss was appointed by Governor Park to succeed Miss Elizabeth Summersby whose term expired July 1, 1933. Mrs. Moss is actively interested in all educational matters and is a prominent member of the Federated Clubs of Missouri, serving as the president in 1929-1931. The Library Commission is fortunate in having her become a member of its organization.

Respectfully submitted,

RUTH O'MALLEY, Secretary.

IN THE MAIL BAG.

"I am today returning under separate cover the material which I borrowed for the club papers and for which I thank you. I appreciate this service of the Missouri Library Commission, which is surely a great help to us in the small towns that do not have the use of a public library."

"May I say just how much the pupils of my school enjoyed the use of these books. All grades used them in nearly every subject. Each and every one including myself appreciated having the opportunity to use these books. May other schools have the same enjoyment."

"Thanks so much. All have enjoyed the books, have been read at least 400 times."

"I have had charge of the books sent from Missouri Library Commission since last May. I received first box in May, second box in September and third in January. In checking over the books I find they have been checked out 765 times. We feel that they have been a success. Have had so many requests for another box for the summer."

"Have you anything available on the fine art of watchmaking, repairing of American-made watches, replacing broken balance staffs, hairsprings, cap jewels and pendant sleeves and the like? If so, will you please forward me a copy, as I have five watches and a clock that conked out and I seem to be a candidate for the 'Information'."

"Books I requested arrived very promptly and I was able to wire our burned-out electric motor myself and so saved the cost of having it wired. Motor now runs again and got a lot of 'kick' out of being able to wire it. Will study the books a while longer and return on time."

"I want to take this opportunity to thank each one of the employees of this institution for the excellent service and many accommodations they have extended to me as a patron of this library and hope that they may be able to continue their service to others if not to myself. Also do I feel indebted to the government which has made this service possible. As I have availed myself of every educational opportunity I have had and as there were numerous subjects in which I am interested that I could not have afforded otherwise, I am greatly indebted. I cannot help but feel however, that even though economic conditions are not at their best it is false economy to deprive the poorer class of people of the educational advantages they have been so unfortunate as never to have had, and I hope that some time this work may be resumed. Although there were other books on your list I have never borrowed any but scientific, technical and educational books. Thanking each of you for your service to me in the past eight years."

"May we keep Ka'dah' for a week longer? I will send it with the other book. We have had a wonderful time with the Eskimos. The only thing that has kept the family from living in a snowhouse a la Eskimo these few weeks has been the absence of building materials suitable. I shall hasten to return the books before the first snowfall. The fever may abate then. Mac S. informed me this morning he wishes it would hurry and snow so he could use his 'dog whip' (which he manufactured from a stick and string). He plans to hitch our dog, a big Police, to his sled—and go hunting for seals down on the creek, I presume. Again thanking you, and assuring you of the return of both books by the 14th."

"Will you send me any books by the following authors: Willa Cather, Leon Feuchtwanger, Joseph Hergesheimer, John Cowper, Hugh Walpole, Du Bose Heyward, Samuel Butler, Walter Lippman, George Gissing. It is a long time since I have had any books from you as I was told this service had been discontinued. It means much to a lonely country woman, unable to buy books."

NEW HAMPSHIRE

PUBLIC LIBRARIES IN MERRIMACK COUNTY.

Total population, 56,152; rural, 24,348.

The village or small town library is the type of public library found here, outside of the larger towns, each unit being independent of every other unit.

This is the prevailing type of library found in New England. Of it the American Library Association, in its chapter on units of service and support in "Library Extension", has this to say:

"New England is dotted with these 'town libraries' which give rural service on small income, the majority of its 1,391 libraries being of this type. In Massachusetts and Rhode Island every town has at least one library; in Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont all the towns in the more thickly settled parts of the state have them. As the 'town' in this sense is found only in New England, it has little bearing on the problem of future library development. Moreover, the small New England libraries are limited in size of book collection, for instance. Will federation into larger 'regional libraries' ever make possible a pooling of resources? "

The following libraries in Merrimack County report (1930):

Concord (25,218), Public Library with 38,782 volumes, 88,837~~3~~ circulation, $11,000 income, and $1,915 for books and periodicals.

NORTH CAROLINA

LIBRARIES IN TWELVE COUNTIES

(In part from letter of Marjorie Beal, Secretary and Director, State Library Commission, March 16, 1934.)

ALAMANCE (Total population, 42,140; rural, 29,431; negro, 8,354.)

Graham (2,972) Banks Holt Library

County Service - None.

Income - $492.99, of which $203.82 is appropriated by the town.

Circulation - 17,752, or 5.1 per capita.

No service to negroes.

Note: This represents a decrease of $844 over 1930 figures.
Circulation not given in 1930.

High School Library at Burlington.

AVERY (Total population, 11,803; all rural.)

Avery County contains Lee's McRae College at Banner's Elk, which has a library. With ^{Yancey}Watauga and Yancey to the north and south, Avery forms a community of mountain counties, whose negro population is inappreciable. Illiteracy in Yancey County 11.9 per cent and in Avery 10.2 per cent.

The territory is traversed by paved roads, the section being a summer pleasure-ground for tourists.

There would appear to be only organizing ability required to form a regional library to serve these three entirely rural counties, the combined population of which is 41,454.

CLEVELAND (Total population, 51,914; rural, 35,493; negro, 12,067.)

Shelby (10,739) Public Library.

County Service - None.

Income - $544.10, $360.00 of which is appropriated by the town.

Circulation - 17,614, or 1.6 per capita.

No service to negroes.

DUPLIN (Total population, 35,103; all rural; negro, 12,987.)

"There is a small library at Kensonsville, in Duplin County, which has recently taken on new life under the leadership of Mrs. R. V. Wells."

EDGECOMBE (Total population, 47,894; rural, 31,493; negro, 27,259.)

Tarboro (6,331) Edgecombe Public Library

County Service - None.

Income -- $1,130.74, $600 of which is appropriated by the city.

Circulation - 23,348.

No service to negroes.

Note: This represents an increase in income over 1930 figures of $239.71, and in circulation, of 12,318.

Rocky Mount (21,409) Thomas Hackney Braswell Library

Income - $6,663.32, of which $4,800 is appropriated by the city.

Circulation - 91,019, or 4.2 per capita.

No service to negroes.

Note: This represents an increase in income over 1930 figures of $455.32, and in circulation, of 41,376.

HENDERSON (Total population, 23,404; rural, 18,334; negro, 2,192.)

Hendersonville (4,898) Public Library (Carnegie)

County Service - None.

Income - $1,093.15, of which $878.35 is appropriated by the city.

Circulation - 33,268.

A branch for negroes.

Note: This represents a decrease of $556.85 in income over 1930 figures, and an increase of 2,981 in circulation, per capita circulation being 6.5.

IREDELL (Total population, 46,693; rural, 30,584; negro, 9,301.)

Statesville (10,491) Public Library.

County Service - To those who come to the library.

Income -- $1,751.78, of which $1,260 is appropriated by the city. For 1934 the county appropriated $500.

Circulation - 30,471, or 2.9 per capita.

No service to negroes.

Mooreville "has an appropriation of $250 from the county commissioners and an equal amount from the city commissioners and has started a library in the center of the town. A few years ago their books were moved into the high school and were very little used by adults"

MOORE (Total population, 28,215; rural, 25,691; negro, 9,795.)

Aberdeen Page Memorial Library

County Service - None.

Income - $289.58, $100 of which is made by the city.

Circulation - 3,057.

No service to negroes.

Southern Pines (2,524) Library. Subscription.

ROBESON (Total population, 66,512; rural, 63,372; negro, 22,784; other races,* 12,405.)

Illiteracy over 10 years, 17.2 per cent.

"Two small libraries ... one at Rowland and one at Lumberton. Both of these libraries have requests for new library buildings and the request for Rowland has been approved and the building is under construction with Federal funds. They will open their library to the county people in that area, but it will not be a county library."

PASQUOTANK (Total population, 19,143; rural, 9,106; negro, 3,206.)

Illiteracy over 10 years, 10 per cent.

— "Elizabeth City (10,037) has a very active library located in the Woman's Club Building."

County Service - None.

Income - $312, with $25 a month from city.

No service to negroes.

CAMDEN AND CURRITUCK COUNTIES. (For population, see table.)

"There are no public libraries in either Camden or Currituck counties, though Currituck County in the summer of 1932 had book truck service with the county school librarian in charge. Unfortunately that was discontinued."

* Sometimes called Roatans, popularly supposed to be descended from the amalgamation of Sir Walter Raleigh's lost colony with their Captors.

SUMMARY

Pasquotank, Camden and Currituck counties adjoin each other, forming the northeastern corner of North Carolina, "from Cherokee to Currituck" being the state's equivalent for "from Dan to Beersheba." The only public library in the three counties is at Elizabeth City, with $300 a year tax-income.

For regional library purposes it seems worthwhile to include in the study three other counties, Chowan, Gates and Perquimans, as the six form a natural division of land bounded on the north by Virginia, south by Albemarle Sound, east by Currituck Sound, and west by Chowan River. This group of three has but one public library, the Shepard-Pruden Memorial Library at Edenton (3,563), which has $300 tax-income from the town and $100 from Chowan County, with a reported circulation of 24,000.

The only educational library reported in the six counties is a State Normal School for colored people at Elizabeth City.

Very old historically, as history is reckoned in the United States, is this section. In the days when the regime of the Old Dominion made life difficult in Nansemond County for the sympathizers with Cromwell, they scattered, some coming southward and forming in this section the nucleus of a new settlement, which was later North Carolina.

Across Kittyhawk Bay, but a few miles from the southern tip of Currituck County, is Roanoke Island, scene of Sir Walter Raleigh's abortive attempts, begun in 1585, to establish an English colony, and here the first English child, Virginia Dare, was born on this side of the Atlantic.

The population background of the six counties runs thus:

	Total pop.	Rural	Negro	Per cent Illiterate
Camden.....	5,461	5,461	2,183
Chowan	11,282	7,719	5,323	12.7
Currituck.....	6,710	6,710	2,255
Gates.....	10,551	10,551	5,042
Pasquotank	19,143	9,106	8,206	10
Perquimans	10,668	10,668	5,287	10.5
Total	63,815	50,215	28,301

SUMMARY (cont'd.)

This population, wholly rural with the exception of Edenton and Elizabeth City, is served by excellent roads.

From Portsmouth to Edenton, passing through the counties, except Currituck and Gates, is a paved highway.(Federal)

A paved State road comes down from the Virginia border to the southermost tip of Currituck, and another State road parallels it roughly to the westward with a terminus at Edenton and branches to Gatesville and Hertford.

Thus every part of the territory is well served by roads.

The east-west extension of the territory, from Currituck Sound to Chowan River, is about sixty miles, while the north-south extension, from the Virginia boundary to Albemarle Sound, is but 35 miles.

One has but to cross the Virginia boundary into the parent county of Nansemond and go on across the James to Elizabeth City County to encounter a grouping that presents suggestive analogies with the six-county group under consideration. Some of these are given in the following table, in which Nansemond and Elizabeth City are referred to as the two-county group:

	2-county	6-county
Total population.....	59,018*	63,815
Rural " "	42,465	50,215
Negro " "	27,124	28,301
Urban " "	16,653	13,600
Largest city "	10,271(Suffolk)	10,037 (Elizabeth City)

* The independent cities, Suffolk and Hampton, are counted.

The foregoing points of comparison, in addition to likenesses of historic and geographic background, are still not so striking as the contrast in public library development in the two areas.

Elizabeth City County has one of the pioneer county libraries of Virginia, tax-supported, and serving negroes as well as whites.

Nansemond County has no county library, but free service to the white population is given from the Suffolk City tax-supported library. Elizabeth City, Pasquotank County, has almost the same population as Suffolk but contributes only $300 to the city library, and no service is given to the county.

Thus these two counties, working separately, give public library service which it would appear might be equalled or surpassed by the six-group working in cooperation.

Washington, D.C.

My dear Miss Stanley:

As you requested, we are listing for your study of community facilities, the following information concerning the specific towns which you mentioned.

Durant. Offers free books to the county or rural population outside the town. $2080.71 appropriated by the city for the year 1933. Total circulation for the year 1933, 28,208. Service to negroes, none.

Enid and Garfield County Library Garfield County operates the only real county library in the state. The library is handled by the Enid Public library with a special librarian and special income. The income of $1200.00 appropriated by the county for its support for 1933 was cancelled because of a Tax protest brought by the Rock Island Railroad on April 17, 1933. The circulation for the county up to that time (7 months) July 1st 1932- April 1933 was 77,726. The total circulation for the year of the public library and county library was 274,381. After the county library was closed the Public library attempted to serve as well as it could the people of the county. Service to negroes is only through the schools.

Hobart Rural borrowers were allowed to use the library free until Nov. 1, 1933 when it became necessary to make a charge of 5 cents per book. The city appropriation was $1642. for the year 1933-1934. The circulation from March 1933 to March 1934 was 29,026. Negroes receive all used books and magazines.

There is no town of Stephen Oklahoma, There is one library in Stephen County at Duncan. Its income was $3,051 for the year 1933, and its total circulation is 92,752. They have no special service to county or negroes.

Beaver County has one library at Beaver, supported by club ladies. Mayes has no libraries, and Pittsburg County has a library at McAlester. The total income for 1933 was $4,500. and the circulation was 67,200. There is no special service to county or negroes.

SUMMARY

The following information is from "Current Farm Economics", issued at Stillwater, June, 1932:

About 60 public libraries in Oklahoma, with 47 active free and club libraries, with a total of 91,382 volumes, or a volume for every 2.8 literate persons.

The State Library Commission maintains two services:

1. Traveling Library Service, which reached at least 425,00 persons in 1930-31. The cost for each time a book was read was approximately 3 cents. Community service organizations, public schools, federated clubs and public schools are the most active local agencies through which the traveling libraries are made available to individual readers.

2. Individual Loan Service. About 2,800 books and pamphlets per month go by mail to readers who have not access to a local library.

ADDENDA FOR OREGON
(From letter of Harriet C. Long, Librarian, Oregon State Library at Salem, dated April 2, 1934.)

CLACKAMAS:

" There is no county library in Clackamas County. The Oregon City Library functions only to the extent of serving those few individuals who pay a non-resident fee. It should not be considered an influence in the same way as the Deschutes, Jackson, and Josephine county libraries. Its 1933 income was $5,239. Its circulation was 59,918. "

DESCHUTES:

Income: $11,888

TABLE: Population 2,110,000, of whom 96,700 live within service area of its 25 public libraries. 1,601,800 people do not have public library service. The 25 public libraries contain 607,500 volumes, have a circulation of 3,975,000 and spent $19,337 in 1931. These libraries appropriate money for libraries, 4 of them less than $1,000; 50 counties are without public library service of any kind; 7 libraries give service to negroes. There are pervasive county and municipal library laws. A lending agency for rural schools and small communities is maintained by State Department of Education, Nashville. There is no state public library extension agency.

TENNESSEE

LIBRARIES IN NINE COUNTIES

BRADLEY (Total population, 22,870; rural, 13,734; negro, 1,471.)

Cleveland (9,136) Public Library
3,400 volumes
County Service - None

Polk County is on the east, with no library facilities, and only 15,686 population. Hamilton County is on the west, with a city-county library at Chattanooga and a population of 159,497.

The greatest dimension of the three counties is east and west and does not exceed 60 miles, while the greatest width is about half that.

Improved roads throughout the district would seem to make possible a contract for an extension of county service from Hamilton to Bradley and Polk. (See (1) map.)

HARDIN (Total population, 16,213, all rural; negro, 1,483.)

No library of any sort reported.

See (2) map. Populations of the contiguous counties of Decatur, Perry and Wayne are entirely rural, and with Hardin total 45,600.

KNOX (Total population, 155,902; rural, 50,100; negro, 19,198.)

Knoxville (105,802) Lauson McGhee Library
1 negro branch, 7 sub-branches, 15 stations,
13 school libraries.
73,384 volumes.
Income - $70,742
Circulation - 448,066

LAUDERDALE (Total population, 23,406, all rural; negro, 9,172.)

Illiteracy above 10 years, 12.1 percent.

Ripley (2,325) Public Library
1,000 volumes.

See (3) map. Total population of Crockett, Haywood and Lauderdale is 69,485, all rural except Brownsville (3,204) in Haywood.

MAURY (Total population, 34,016; rural, 26,134; negro, 9,808.)

Illiteracy above 10 years, 10.1 percent.

Columbia (7,373) Public Library, 1,200 volumes.
High School Library
County Service - None.

For a basis on which a county service would be possible a contract might be made between Maury, Marshall, Hickman and Lewis, with a total population of 60,034, entirely rural except for Columbia (7,373) in Maury and Lewisburg (3,112) in Marshall.

See (4) map.

MONTGOMERY (Total population, 30,832; rural, 21,840; negro, 10,113)

Clarksville (9,227) Public Library.
6,000 volumes
Income - $1,000
Circulation - 2,400

High School Library

No county service. Service area might be extended by contract not only to Montgomery but to Stewart and Houston counties, the three making a population unit of 49,715 wholly rural except Clarksville. Stewart and Houston are too small to maintain separate libraries.

See (5) map.

OBION (Total population, 29,086; rural, 23,221; negro, 4,033.)

Union City (5,365) Library (Carnegie)

1,000 volumes

County Service - None

West of Obion is the narrow county of Lake, with a wholly rural population of 10,486, of which 3,754 are negroes. Lake County has an illiteracy percentage of 16.1.

Road distribution points to inclusion of Dyer and Gibson counties with Obion and Lake as a possible service area for a regional library. Paved roadways connect Union City with Dyersburg and Trenton, and many branches form a network of improved roads in the area, including one to Tiptonville, county-seat of Lake. (See (6) map.) Population thus served would total 117,505, of which 92,247 is rural.

SEVIER (Total population, 20,480, all rural)

No library of any sort reported.

Adjoining Knox County as it does, a contract service with the Knoxville Public Library might be effected. A paved road from Knoxville extends across the county. Another road runs southward from Sevierville through Gatlinburg.

Total population (rural) thus served would be 70,580.

See Knox

WARREN (Total population, 20,480, all rural; negro, 1,353.)

McMinnville (3,897) W.H. Edgar Magness Memorial Library.

County Service - None.

Income - $1,180

Circulation 18,250

Warren is a county in central Tennessee, almost circular in shape, entirely surrounded by seven counties, none of which in 1930 reported any library service whatever.

WARREN (cont'd,)

The total population of the eight counties -- Cannon, Coffee, DeKalb, Grundy, Sequatchie, Van Buren, Warren and White -- is 92,981, or some 12,000 fewer than that of Knoxville. Warren is the most populous, while Van Buren (3,516) and Sequatchie (4,047) are the least so. All counties are uniformly rural except Coffee and Warren, whose county seats form a total urban population of 3,027. There are but 3,230 negroes in the eight counties.

Paved roads radiate from McMinnville directly to Smithville, Sparta, Altamont, Manchester and Woodbury, county seats respectively of DeKalb, White, Grundy, Cannon and Coffee counties. Spencer and Dunlap, seats of the two small counties of Van Buren and Sequatchie, are linked by an improved road branching from the McMinnville-Sparta road and traversing the length of the two counties.

See (7) map.

Recapitulation of library conditions as reported by American Library Association in " Books for the South", 1933:

TEXAS: population 5,824,715, of whom 2,067,570 live within the service area of its 60 public libraries. 3,757,145 people do not have public library service. The 60 libraries contain 1,136,772 volumes, had a circulation of 6,709,132 in 1931 and spent $704,328. Fourteen counties appropriate money for libraries; 159 counties are without public library service of any kind; 12 libraries give service to negroes. There are permissive county and municipal library laws. Book lending service and advisory given by Texas Library and Historical

IS YOUR COUNTY ON THIS MAP?

The counties printed black are operating county libraries.

There is a growing practice in Texas of calling any library located in the courthouse a County Library. The use of the title by libraries not legally organized under the Texas law is confusing the public and making the establishment of library standards very difficult.

A County Library is one established under Articles 1677-1696 of the Revised Civil Statutes of Texas. It is supported by an appropriation from the county's general fund, has a trained and certificated librarian in charge, is under the supervision of the Commissioners' Court and the State Library, and is free to every citizen of the county. Club and school authorities will aid in the library development of Texas if they will refrain from using the name County Library in the case of libraries which do not meet the requirements of the county library law. The only county libraries in Texas today are shown on the map above.

BOOK AUTOS

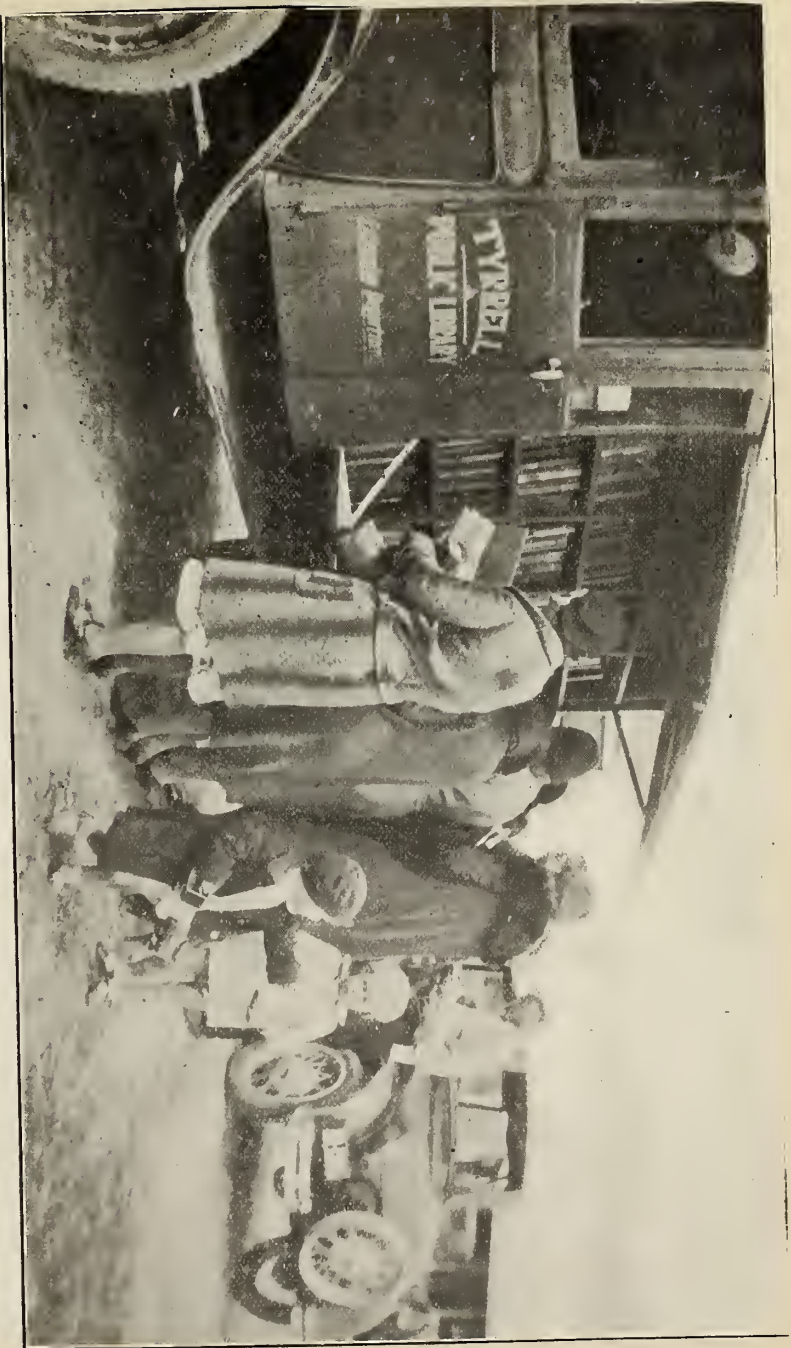

There are sixty book autos in use in libraries over the United States now. One of these is described as a Dodge truck " with specially constructed body and book shelves opening on the outside. It holds 1,400 volumes and leaves the library in Beaumont daily except Sundays. When the book auto stops at a rural school the juvenile side is opened; when the stops are made at country stores, or filling stations, or other places convenient for adults, the other side is opened and all sorts of fascinating books are to be found in addition to fiction. The book auto runs on a regular schedule and people watch for it as they do for the postman--and it always has something for them.

Where roads are good the book auto is probably the most valuable medium for book distribution. It makes the county library a living institution by affording the rural patron the pleasure of choosing his own books, and it establishes a close and friendly relation between the librarian and the borrowers. The "rolling library" has treasures for the farm home; let us have more of them in Texas! "

BOOK REVIEW

There are three books which in the United States are described as "fiction" with a view to the fact that they are not "literature" in the sense of the word as used by the author. The first is "The Book of the Dead" by the author of "The Book of the Living" and "The Book of the Dead" by the author of "The Book of the Living". The second is "The Book of the Dead" by the author of "The Book of the Living" and "The Book of the Dead" by the author of "The Book of the Living". The third is "The Book of the Dead" by the author of "The Book of the Living" and "The Book of the Dead" by the author of "The Book of the Living".

There is a book which is probably the most valuable source for book criticism. It is the "Book of the Dead" by the author of "The Book of the Living" and "The Book of the Dead" by the author of "The Book of the Living". The book is a collection of the most valuable sources for book criticism. It is the "Book of the Dead" by the author of "The Book of the Living" and "The Book of the Dead" by the author of "The Book of the Living". The book is a collection of the most valuable sources for book criticism. TEXAS

LIBRARIES IN TWENTY-FIVE COUNTIES

(Data from 1930 A.L.A. Register, supplemented by letter from Edwin Sue Goree, Library Organizer, State Library, Austin.)

State Library at Austin maintains a traveling library system, designed to meet immediate book needs and to lay a foundation for local library establishment.

ANDERSON (Total population, 34,643; rural, 23,198; negro, 11,885.)

Palestine (11,445) Carnegie Library

County service - None.

Income - $2,400, tax and endowment.

Circulation - 37,988, an increase from 26,889 in 1930.

Service to negroes - None.

BEE (Total population, 15,721; rural, 10,915; Mexican, 7,158.)

Illiteracy over 10 years, 21 per cent.

Beeville (500) has a club library, with a county service supported by donations.

Possibilities of a regional tax-supported library exist by union with San Patricio County, where there is a library at Sinton giving a similar service.(county). See (3) on map - combined populations of the two counties total 39,557. All of San Patricio is rated rural, with 12,413, or a little more than half, Mexican. Illiteracy in San Patricio over 10 years is 24.9 per cent.

A paved road extends from southeast San Patricio to northwest Bee, passing through Sinton and Beeville, which are 30 miles apart.

TABLE

LIBRARIES IN TAMIL NADU

From 1930 A.D. to 1931 A.D. the number of libraries has increased from 100 to 150. (Total number, 150.)

State Library at Madras and District Libraries are the main sources of books and periodicals. A few libraries for local library establishment.

ANNEXURE (Total population, 1,14,40,000; male, 5,72,00,000; female, 5,72,00,000)

Population (11,44,00,000) (Male, 5,72,00,000; Female, 5,72,00,000)

County service - None.

Income - Rs. 4,00,000, tax and expenditure.

Circulation - 25,00,000, from 1930 to 1931.

Service to persons - None.

Bibliography (Total population, 1,14,40,000; male, 5,72,00,000; female, 5,72,00,000)

Library over 10 years, 1 per cent.

Private (50) (a) a club library, with a county service supported by donations.

Possibilities of a regional library service by union with San Pabulo County, where there is a library at San Pabulo giving a similar service (county). See (3) - combined population of the two counties total 25,00,000. All of San Pabulo is under 10 years, with 1,00,00,000 on a little more than 10 years. This is San Pabulo over 10 years is 1,00,00,000.

A new road between San Pabulo and San Pabulo to Port West Bay, passing through San Pabulo and San Pabulo, which are 10 years old.

BEXAR (Total population, 292,533; rural, 54,409; negro, 19,447; Mexican, 99,389.)

San Antonio (231,542) Public Library.

County service by payment of small fee.

Income - $90,000 tax. Cut almost in half but gradually being restored. Almost double 1930.

Circulation - 700,000; more than double 1930.

Educational libraries in Bexar include three high school, six junior high, and various college and institutional libraries in San Antonio, and a high school library at Mineral Wells.

BOWIE (Total population, 48,563; rural, 31,961; negro, 15,971.)

Texarkana Club Library. Inadequate.

Income - $3000 from Community Chest and $700 from subscribers.

Circulation - 52,000.

Service to negroes - None.

This library is making every effort to be placed on a tax-supported basis, but the city lies in both Texas and Arkansas and both city and county library laws differ.

BRAZOS (Total population, 21,285; rural, 14,021; negro, 9,064.)

Illiteracy above 10 years, 13.1 per cent.

Bryan (7,814) Carnegie Library.

County service - Some, but poor.

Income - $2,200.

Circulation - No records.

Service to negroes - None.

COOKE (Total population, 24,136; rural, 15,221.)

Gainesville(8,917). Cooke County Free Library, Carnegie building.

County service - 82 branches.

Income - $4,300, county and city tax.

Circulation - 90,000.

Service to negroes - Branch in Gainesville; county service not well developed.

DALLAS (Total population, 325,691; rural, 52,594; negro, 47,879.)

Dallas (260,475) Public Library (Carnegie).

County service on payment of small fee.

Income - $85,000 tax, an increase of $20,000 since 1930.

Circulation - 935,000, nearly double 1930.

Service to negroes - Excellent branch in Dallas.

FRIO (Total population, 9,411; rural, 6,875; Mexican, 5,872.)

Illiteracy above 10 years, 26.9 per cent.

No library service except three collections loaned by State Library, 1933.

Under Article 1694 of State Library law Frio County might contract with San Antonio Public Library. An improved road and a railroad transverse the county, coming southward from San Antonio, which is but 50 miles from Pearsall (See county map)

HALE (Total population, 20,189; rural, 11,355.)

Plainview (8,834). Small subscription library.

A good road leads from Plainview to Lubbock, 50 miles distant, headquarters of Lubbock County Free Library, which has tax-support to the extent of $5,606. A contract between the two counties would seem practical and desirable. (See map).

Educational libraries in Hale are Wayland College and a high school library.

HARRISON (Total population, 48,937; rural, 32,734; negro, 29,409.)

Marshall (16,203) Public Library. Poor.

Income - $500 from dollar dues.

Circulation - No report.

Service to negroes - Adequate from Carnegie Library of Wiley College, which is used also by white high school and junior college students.

HEMPHILL (Total population, 4,637; rural, same.)

Canadian (2,068) Public Library.

County service but inadequate.

Hemphill is one of four counties forming a square in the northeast corner of the panhandle, with a combined population of 15,830. The section is 60 miles square and is traversed by improved roads, making possible regional library service. (See (4) on map.)

HIDALGO (Total population, 77,004; rural, 39,174; Mexican, 41,580.)

Illiteracy above 10 years, 21.3 per cent.

Small subscription libraries at Edinburg (4,321), Mc Allen (9,074), Mercedes (6,608) and Mission (3,347).

Educational libraries are : Edinburg College, high schools at McAllen and Weslaco.

HILL (Total population, 43,036; rural, 35,213; negro, 5,913.)

No public library service except three loans in 1933 from State Library.

Educational libraries are high school and junior college at Hillsboro.

County population quite large enough to support library service alone. However, at Waco, in the adjoining county of McLennan with a population of 98,682, is a county library which could serve as a nucleus for a regional library.

HUNT (Total population, 49,016; rural, 32,342; negro, 5,653.)

Greenville (12,047). Carnegie Library. Service described as "fair".

Income - $4,100 tax.

Circulation - 66,000.

Educational libraries are high school and two college.

KERR (Total population, 10,151; rural, 5,605.)

Kerrville (4,546) Schreiner Institute Library. Subscription.

County service - "Very poor".

Circulation - 4,140 (1930)

Two collections loaned by State Library, 1933.

County population too small for efficient service. However, Kerr bounds Bexar on the north and is connected with San Antonio by paved and otherwise improved roads, which would make practicable a contract service from the large public library at San Antonio.

NOLAN (Total population, 19,323; rural, 8,475.)

Sweetwater (10,848) Public Library.

Income - $1,170 (1930)

Circulation - 25,000.

ORANGE (Total population, 15,149; rural, 7,236; negro, 2,447.)

Orange (7,913) Small subscription and high school library.

County service - Very poor. They send books over county by home demonstration agent.

State Library extension advises for Orange County a contract service with Jefferson County rather than a separate county library service.

1937 (Total population, 14,101; rural, 12,101; urban, 2,000.)

✓ POLK (Total population 17,555; rural, same; negro, 5,567.)

From Livingston Enterprise, January 5, 1933, the following is quoted:

"During its first month, which closed Saturday, December 31, the Free Public Library at Livingston was used by 288 persons, most of whom have already borrowed several books. Altho the library contains only about 600 volumes and is open only three afternoons a week, it had a total circulation of 933 volumes or an average of 83 book loans per afternoon.

"The library is scheduled to last one year. It is sponsored by the Livingston Parent-Teachers Association and the Study Club of Livingston and was made possible by a remarkable offer from the State Library. The state institution has placed here what is known as a demonstration library, this particular collection representing an outlay of $300 in new books and a far smaller amount of volumes that were already on the shelves of the State Library. These books may be kept by Livingston till the first of next December."

From the News Letter of A.L.A., January 23, 1934, this extract is quoted:

"A small library at Livingston, not tax-supported but free, has applied for a librarian to do promotional work looking toward county library establishment."

This librarian was furnished three months by the C.W.A.

The interesting experimental library outlined above was run for $150 supplied by donations and benefits. Its circulation was 11,027, books being supplied to Garrison and Corrigan, as well as Livingston.

While the enterprise shown is commendable, consideration must be given to the small county population and its questionable ability to establish a good county service. To the southeast, not over 100 miles from the extreme northwest tip of Polk county, is Beaumont, where auto libraries leave every week to travel over Jefferson County. There seems no reason why contracts might not be made to have them extend their trips to branches in Polk County. (See (5) map.)

POLK (cont'd.)

Library extension plans are now made not only with motor service and modern roads in mind, but with air service into the villages beyond the roads.

RANDALL (Total population, 7,071; rural, 3,133.)

Obviously too small a population for good service.. There is a small club library which gives permissive county service, but has little to offer. It has been maintained by benefits and donations. C.W.A. furnished a librarian three months.

The State Library advises contract county library service from either Deaf Smith or Potter County library, preferably Potter since part of Amarillo runs over into Randall County. (See (6) on map.)

Educational library - West Texas Teachers College at Canyon (2,821).

STEPHENS (Total population, 16,560; rural, 8,991.)

Breckenridge (7,569) Stephens County Library.

County service. - Very poor.

Income - $300 from city and $300 from county.

It may be observed that Breckenridge is but 90 miles by paved road from Fort Worth, where the Tarrant County Library is located, and that a contract system with a branch at Breckenridge might be advantageous to both counties. All night big trucks roll from fields to early morning markets and library book trucks could do the same.

TOM GREEN (Total population, 36,033; rural, 10,725; negro, 1,760; Mexican, 3,725.)

San Angelo (25,308). County Library.

Income - $7,000 from county tax. Decrease of $2,000 from 1930 figures.

Circulation - 123,600, an increase of 102,000 since 1930

Service to negroes - Small branch in San Angelo County begun 1933.

News Letter of American Library Association, January 23, 1934:

"The Tom Green County Library, San Angelo, Texas, has secured three workers, one with library training, to prepare for circulation and to distribute rural school library books through arrangement with the County Superintendent of Schools. A fourth worker may be added to visit rural schools, hold story hours, etc."

(Cont'd.)

Library statistics show that not only with normal service and normal hours of work, but with service into the night as beyond the normal.

Example (Total population, 7,071; rural, 3,111.)

Obviously for such a population for good service.
There is a small library which gives extensive county service, but the little effort. It has been trained by private and donations. O.K.A. furnished a librarian three months.

The State Library, which is not a county library, but vice versa, is the only one in the county library, and furnishes the only one of its kind in the county.
County. (See (4) on page 11.)

Example: Library - West Texas College
Canyon (2,211).

Example (Total population, 15,700; rural, 4,911.)

Brookhaven (7,500) Stephens County Library.
County service - Very poor.
Income - $200 from city and $200 from county.

If we are to have a library in the county, it must be in a place where it is not only a library, but a library in the county, and it must be a library of Brookhaven might be a library to be a library.
All night long, but it is not a library to be a library.
service and library book service could do the same.

Example (Total population, 26,073; rural, 15,715; male, 1,700; female, 7,752.)

San Angelo (26,325) County Library.
Income - $7,000 from county and $2,000 from city.
From 1930 to 1935.
Circulation - 12,500, to increase of 10,000 from 1930
Service to school - 10,000 from the county.

TRAVIS (Total population, 77,777; rural, 24,657; negro, 15,832; Mexican, 10,257.)

Austin (53,120) Public Library.

County service on payment of small fee.

Income - $5,000, increase of $1,600 since 1930.

Circulation - 60,099, increase of 13,000 since 1930.

Service to negroes - Branch opened in Austin, 1933.

Inadequate but growing.

Educational libraries are:

State Library of Texas Library and Historical Commission

High School Library

Junior High School Library

University of Texas Library

Four college libraries, one of which is for negroes.

WASHINGTON (Total population, 25,394; rural, 19,420; negro, 9,893.)

Brenham (5,974) Public Library.

County service very poor.

Educational library is a small one at Blinn College.

As Washington adjoins Brazos, and neither has a good county service the combined populations of the counties could provide a regional service. (See (7) on map.)

WHARTON (Total population, 29,681; rural, 26,990; negro, 7,903; Mexican, 4,248.)

Illiteracy above 10 years, 10 per cent.

Small subscription libraries at El Campo and Wharton.

Very poor.

Wharton is but 60 miles by paved road from Houston where the Harris County Public Library operates 74 county branches, with a $22,000 county appropriation. A contract with this library for a branch at Wharton, which could maintain sub-branches throughout the county, would seem practicable.

WILBARGER (Total population, 24,579; rural, 15,442; negro, 4,817; Mexican, 1,023.)

Vernon (9,137). Wilbarger County Library.

County service - Very poor. Gives permissive service to county people but no effort to go to them.

Income - $1500 city and $1500 county.

Circulation - 54,000; an increase of more than 20,000 since 1930.

Service to negroes - None.

Educational library - Junior-Senior High School at Vernon.

SUMMARY

No better expression for the library situation as revealed in most of the counties studied could perhaps be found than in the foreword of "Better Libraries for Texas," issued by the State Library, which follows:

"Believing with Joseph L. Wheeler, librarian of the Enoch Pratt Free Library of Baltimore, Maryland, that it is as great an extravagance for a community to support a scrub library as it is for a farmer to support a scrub cow, the State Library, in this bulletin which supersedes "How to Secure a County Library," has emphasized better libraries. We have scores of little subscription libraries, made up of collections of gift books and open to a few people who can pay for cards; it is time for these infant libraries to grow up into real libraries. The needs of our State make access to carefully selected books a matter of necessity. Such collections should be free to all the people and they pay higher dividends in community benefits when they are established on the petition of the people and supported from public funds."

Recapitulation of library conditions as reported by American Library Association in " Books for the South, " 1933:

VIRGINIA: population 2,421,851, of whom 1,131,327 live within service area of its 63 public libraries. 1,290,524 people do not have public library service. The 63 libraries contain 792,446 volumes, had a circulation of 2,730,503 volumes, and spent $306,308 during 1931. Four counties appropriate money for libraries; 3 of them less than $1,000; 69 counties are without public library service of any kind; 10 libraries give service to negroes. There are permissive county and municipal library laws. Book lending and advisory service given by Virginia State Library, Richmond.

VIRGINIA

LIBRARIES IN TEN COUNTIES- met

(Data based in part on 1931-32 figures contained in letter from Leslie W. Stevens, Head of Extension Division, Virginia State Library, dated March 20, 1934.)

AMHERST (Total population, 19,020, all rural; negro, 5,721.)

Illiteracy over 10 years, 15.3 percent.

No public library reporting.

Educational library at Sweetbriar College.

Lynchburg is just beyond the county line in Campbell County, to which its well-equipped city library is free. A contract for county service for Amherst would seem to be practicable.

DINWIDDIE (Total population, 18,429, all rural; negro, 11,192)

Illiteracy over 10 years, 20.7 percent.

Petersburg (independent city). William R. McKenny Library lends to rural borrowers who pay $1.00 fee.

Income - $10,698, city appropriation.

Circulation - 89,570

No report of service to negroes, though data states the larger cities have negro branches with trained negro librarians, there being eight such branches in the state.

ESSEX (Total population, 6,976, all rural; negro, 3,816)

Illiteracy over 10 years, 13.5 percent.

Tappahannock has a Woman's Club Library which lends to rural borrowers for $2.00 fee.

Income - Fees and donations.

Circulation - 100.

No negro service

ESSEX (Cont'd.)

Essex is one of the six counties that make up what was known as the " Middle Neck " , or the land lying between the Rappahannock and Pamunkey-York Rivers. Their population is shown below:

| | Total pop. | Rural | Negro | Percent
Illiterate |
|----------------|-------------------|--------------|--------------|-------------------------------|
| Essex | 6,976 | 6,976 | 3,816 | 13.5 |
| Gloucester | 11,019 | 11,019 | 4,349 | 10.2 |
| King and Queen | 7,618 | 7,618 | 4,156 | 11.3 |
| King William | 7,929 | 7,929 | 3,805 | 14.9 |
| Mathews | 7,884 | 7,884 | 1,993 | |
| Middlesex | 7,273 | 7,273 | 3,360 | |
| Total | 48,699 | 48,699 | 21,479 | |

No library of any sort is reported in any of these wholly rural counties except the small club libraries at Tappahannock in Essex County, and at West Point, in King William, both of which admit rural subscribers.

The greatest dimension of the territory is about 70 miles from the northeast of Essex to the southwest of Gloucester. The width nowhere exceeds 30 miles.

Improved roads reach the county seats, and navigable rivers are on both sides of the area for the greater part of its extent.

The population is sufficient to maintain a fair regional service, with the cooperation of the State Library.

FAUQUIER (Total population, 21,071, all rural, negro, 6,272.)

Warrenton Library lends to rural borrowers for $3.00 fee.

Income - Fees and donations.

Circulation - 8,065

No negro service.

Note: Circulation exceeds 1930 figures by 2,734.

FAUQUIER (Cont'd.)

This is a county of considerable taxable wealth but if the unit of taxation should be considered too small for adequate revenue, the adjoining Prince William County, with no library of any sort reporting, would add a wholly rural population of 13,951, and the two counties form a regional library.

The dimensions of the united counties nowhere exceed 75 by 60 miles.

HALIFAX (Total population, 41,283; rural, 36,442; negro, 18,881.)

South Boston (4,841) Public Library

County Service - Free to rural borrowers.

Income - $425 from city. Donations.

Circulation - Not given. 41,238 volumes.

No negro service.

Here the county might well add tax-support to that of South Boston.

LOUISA (Total population, 14,309, all rural; negro, 5,841.)

Illiteracy over 10 years, 10.8 percent.

No library of any sort reported.

Likewise the adjoining county of Fluvanna, with a wholly rural population of 7,466, is destitute of libraries.

These two counties form with Albemarle County an area not exceeding 40 by 60 miles and a total population of 48,756. Already a tax-supported city-county library is reported from Albemarle and the two smaller adjoining counties might consider cooperation with that county for an extension of service.

Paved roads make communication between the counties practicable.

NORFOLK (Total population, 30,032, all rural; negro, 13,307.)

Illiteracy over 10 years, 10.9 percent.

No public library for the county, but within its borders are two independent cities, namely: -

(1) Norfolk (129,710) Public Library.

County Service - For $1.50 fee.

Income - $50,611, of which $47,459 is city appropriated and the remainder endowment.

Circulation - 433,047

Negro branch.

(2) Portsmouth (45,704) Public Library.

County Service - For $1.00 fee.

Income - $3,209, city appropriation.

ROANOKE (Total population, 35,289; rural, 26,846; negro, 3,269.)

No county public library

Educational libraries at Hollins College and Roanoke College, Salem.

However, from the independent city of Roanoke (69,206), which has a library appropriation of $28,577, rural residents may borrow for a $2.00 fee.

Circulation - 294,898

Service to negroes - None reported.

ROCKINGHAM (Total population, 29,709, all rural.)

Harrisonburg (7,232) Rockingham County Library

County Service - Free.

Income - $1,564, of which $937 is city appropriation and the remainder donations.

Circulation - 12,264

Service to negroes - No report of any.

Educational libraries are State Teachers College and High School.

1955-56 Total Collection, $1,000.00 (all from $1.00)

Library dues, $10.00 (all from $1.00)

No public library for the county, but the public library is the only one in the county, and the public library is the only one in the county.

1956-57 Total Collection, $1,000.00 (all from $1.00)

County Service - $1.00 fee

Income - $1,000.00 of which $1,000.00 is for the county and the remainder is for the county.

Collection - $1,000.00

Net income, $1,000.00

1957-58 Total Collection, $1,000.00 (all from $1.00)

1960-61 Total Collection, $1,000.00 (all from $1.00)

County Service - $1.00 fee

Income - $1,000.00 of which $1,000.00 is for the county and the remainder is for the county.

Collection - $1,000.00

Net income, $1,000.00

Public library, $1,000.00 (all from $1.00)

TAZEWELL(Total population, 32,477, all rural; negro, 2,689.)

No library of any sort reporting.

Considerations which ^{link} ~~through~~ Tazewell with Russell County to form a desirable unit for a regional library, are:

- (1) Neither has any library.
- (2) Total population is 58,434, wholly rural except for Bluefield(23,245) of which 3,906 is on the Virginia side of the State line. Negro population, 3,468.
- (3) The two counties lie between the Clinch mountains on the east and Dividing Ridge on the west, forming a continuous valley.
- (4) Dimensions of the valley are about 70 by 25 miles.
- (5) A paved Federal -aid road runs from Bluefield on the north border to Harrisonville in the southern part of Russell County with improved state roads branching from it.

Recapitulation of library conditions as reported by American Library Association in " Books for the South, " 1933:

WEST VIRGINIA: population 1,729,205, of whom 408,450 live within service area of its 23 public libraries. 1,320,755 people do not have public library service. The 23 public libraries contain 254,060 volumes, had a circulation of 1,300,228 volumes and spent 114,990 in 1931. One county appropriates money for library service; 34 counties are without public library service of any kind. There are permissive county and municipal library laws. • There is a State Library

WEST VIRGINIA

SUMMARY

The three cities reporting public libraries, Bluefield, Morgantown, and Parkersburg, do not report except for volumes. At Morgantown the 3,500 volumes is trifling even for city service. The same is true for the 9,900 volumes at Bluefield, and the 25,000 volumes reported from Parkersburg do not represent as much as one volume per capita.

These five counties appear to be representative of the general public library status in West Virginia as reported by the American Library Association in its pamphlet, " Books for the South", (1933):

" Four counties appropriate money for libraries, three of them less than $1,000; 69 counties are without public library service of any kind; 10 (of the 63 public libraries) give service to negroes. "

ADDENDA FOR WEST VIRGINIA
(From data in letter of Anna E. Tatlor, Librarian, Carnegie Library, Parkersburg, Wood County.)

ADDENDA FOR WYOMING

(From data in letter of Mrs. C. R. Myers, Librarian, Goshen County, dated, March, 1934.)

GOSHEN COUNTY:

52 bundles of books go to different specified points in the county (usually). They make their own selection of books for the bundle and keep it for two months. Then they make other selection and the returned bundle is charged off and put back on the shelves.

Income: $1/8$ mill levy on appraised valuation of land in the county, making about $1800 per year.

Circulation from main library: 51,180 books.

(From letter in letter of Mr. C. R. West, Librarian, Western County, Ohio, dated, March, 1911.)

Dear Sir:

At present of course no different specified books in in the county (usually). They were their own selection of books for the county and not in the two books. They were never selected and the returned books is turned off and put back on the shelves.

Inclosed I will find an abstract valuation of land in the county, dated about 1880 per year.

Disposition from this library: 21,150 books.
